Shaw Records.

Among the many commendations showered upon Mrs. Farwell since the publication of her work, we note the following clipped from the New England Historic Genealogical Register. In speaking of the book the editor says:

“It is not only valuable as a genealogy, but is also interesting in its biographical and anecdotal features, and Mrs. Farwell is to be congratulated on the publication of her book while yet her health was sufficient to endure the labor of supervision. The illustrations are excellent, the print, clear and paper and binding good. Besides a thorough index, there is an appendix containing ancient wills, deed, etc., and forty pages of poetical selections by persons whose biographies appear in the book. Published by E. C. Bowler, Bethel, Me.”

Shaw Records, the book mentioned above, is sold for the low price of $3.00, on receipt of which, the book will be sent postpaid. To Historical and Genealogical Libraries $1.00.

PREFACE.

In placing "Shaw Records" before the public, we feel that some explanation is due to those of the name who trace their ancestry back to different emigrants from the old countries, but whose records are not found in this compilation.

This work when commenced in 1892, was at first intended to embrace all obtainable information of the Shaws of America, whose lines of ancestry could be identified as coming from immigrants to our shores in the earliest Colonial times. But when it was ascertained that instead of the two or three which was generally believed to be the entire number who braved the perils of the sea and sought refuge in the new country at that early period, seven, perhaps eight, would be a more correct estimate of those of the name who had well established themselves with their families in American homes near the beginning of the 17th century, and that, at the present time, the Shaws were more numerous than the Smiths or Joneses, then the full magnitude of the projected work became manifest, and redoubled efforts were put forth to obtain the requisite information for a reliable genealogy.

This close application to the work soon obliged the compiler to desist (on account of its disastrous effect on eyesight and general health) and confine herself to the one particular line to which she belonged, that of Roger Shaw who settled in Cambridge as early as 1636. And, though the results have not quite equaled expectations, it should be taken into consideration that all genealogies must, to a certain extent, be a work of co-operation, and that the lack of interest shown by many in works of this kind and the consequent failure of many families to respond to solicitations for information which can be obtained in no other way, conspire to render the work of the compiler incomplete and unsatisfactory. It is to be earnestly hoped that all such non-helpers will be sparing of their criticisms in this instance, until they shall have learned more of the difficult tasks and vexatious delays (requiring time and an infinite amount of patience) which serve to retard the progress of the work, if they do not defeat the honest purposes of the genealogist. It should also be borne in mind that town records to which recourse was made in many places, often proved incomplete and quite as often incorrect; while those of families showed discrepancies requiring much unnecessary labor and no small amount of ingenuity to rectify.

In striking contrast to the class of delinquents just noted, we take pleasure in pointing out brighter examples of loyalty to family and the memory of ancestors, whose names as benefactors of this work should be here recorded. Among these, the name of Thomas Shaw of Sebago Lake, Maine, who furnished records kept by his father, the late Daniel Shaw, (of the same place) through many generations to which this son had been constantly adding by his own personal efforts as well as leading pecuniary aid in several instances, stands first. Credit should also be given John W. Shaw, broker, of Boston, who caused a search to be made for records at the City Halls of Boston and Cambridge, at the rooms of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society in the former city, and of the Probate Records of the counties of Suffolk and Middlesex in Massachusetts, at his own expense, in interest of this work—the results being forwarded by his nephew, Frank M. Shaw, of Newport, Maine, with additional material furnished by the latter. Miss Lucy E. Dow, editor and co-worker with her father, Joseph Dow, in the compilation of the History of Hampton, is remembered for courtesies shown up to the time of her decease. Thanks are also due Peter S. Bean of Wisconsin, for contributing records of Shaws of that State who were descendants of Hampton families, and Hon. Oliver W. Shaw for photograph of the old Shaw House of Hampton, and other favors. Hon. Elijah M. Shaw of Nashua, N. H., furnished many records of Kensington Shaws, and after a long search obtained the will of Roger Shaw (the immigrant) and that of his son Benjamin which is used in this work. Joseph H. Shaw of Saco, Maine, also contributed several wills besides copying others for the use of the compiler. Dr. H. F. Shaw of Mount Vernon, Maine, rendered valuable aid in collecting records of Minot Shaws; and Mrs. Mary Shaw Miller of Cliftondale, Mass., by collecting and forwarding records of the Moultonborough branch through four generations, and other favors; Victor C. Sanborn for information relative to the birth of Roger Shaw. And last, but not least in the list of benefactors, we come to the name of Eben S. Kilborn of Bethel, Maine, “the real power behind the throne,” whose generosity rendered the publication of these records in book form possible, after furnishing substantial aid, both in a pecuniary sense and otherwise, all through the progress of the work while in its various stages of preparation (since the commencement).

But in addition to the valuable assistance received from the friends of this enterprise, the amount of labor required in connecting broken fragments of family and individual histories, the hunting up of lost links in long chains of ancestry, and the classifying and arranging of large accumulations of miscellaneous material sent in, in the most bewildering form, to say nothing of the expense involved, would astonish those not familiar with this kind of labor.

Nearly five hundred printed circulars of four pages each have been sent out through the mails calling for records and other information ; more than a thousand letters have been written for the same purpose ; town histories, including the History of Cambridge, Mass., Sanbornton, N. H., Hampton, N. H., Davis' Landmarks of Plymouth, and the Histories of Gorham, Paris, Bethel and Waterford in Maine, besides numerous biographies and as many genealogies have been examined for the information needed to make this work complete. That it may be enjoyed and appreciated by the descendants of our great common ancestor to whose memory this unpretentious volume is dedicated, is the devout wish of the compiler.

KEY.

As the system of reference used in this work may differ somewhat from that found in some of the older genealogies, it may be advisable to explain the method here adopted by which any head of a family may be traced from the generation in which he was born to the next one following it. The names of the children being numbered in their natural order, (using Roman letters) whenever one is carried forward to the next generation a smaller figure (numeral) is placed at the left, close to the number of the child, to re-appear in the same position with the Roman letters omitted, in the next generation. In order to trace a name backward, it is only necessary to refer to the names printed in italics over each family in the larger print used—the small figures at the upper right hand corners always denoting the generation, and the names in their natural order, leading back to the immigrant.

For the sake of avoiding numberless repetitions, abbreviations are often used in place of the full word; for example, b, stands for born; m, for married; d, for died; res, for resides or resided, etc.; unmm, for unmarried; and ch, for children. Many other abbreviations such as are found in all other writings of a different class, are also used.

SHAW.

Various opinions have been given by eminent authorities as to the origin and signification of the name Shaw. As to the word itself, apart from its application to a numerous and much scattered family of the human race, Webster and other etymologists define it thus:—"a thickly wooded spot in a low place or hollow—a thicket, a low country with a thick, short growth of trees and shrubbery." Such a tract of land has been designated by the inhabitants of Scotland, as "The Shaw." Hence, many interested in Scotch nomenclature have concluded that the name as applied to the race known as Shaws the world over, must have been derived from the fact that they were originally natives of the low countries of Scotland and England.

But in contradiction to this theory we find a tradition which has existed among the Shaws of America, handed down from their respective ancestors who were immigrants to this country during the early Colonial period of its existence, that Scotland was the mother country from which this hardy race first sprang, and from which many of her sons fled during the troublous times of Charles I of England, Scotland and Ireland when the arrogant, stiff-necked king undertook to substitute and establish the church of England (Episcopalian) in Scotland where the Presbyterian order had been so firmly rooted (and was, indeed, established by law of the Scottish Parliament years before, and confirmed by James V) and who (Charles) exacted many other concessions from both countries too unreasonable to be borne, which resulted in his overthrow and the usurpation of the government by Cromwell.

The tradition has also been religiously kept in each of the various ancestral lines of American Shaws, that these immigrants were from the "Highlands of Scotlands" originally, although some were known to have been residents of England long previous to their coming to America.

In a book entitled "Clans of the Scottish Highlands" by Robert Roland Maclan, published in 1857, we find a very interesting account of the way in which the name Shaw originated in Scotland. This author says:—

"Antiquarians and genealogists assent to the tradition that the 'Shaws' are descended from MacDuff (the earl of Fife, or 'thane', of Shakespearian fame) who aided Malcolm III, the rightful heir to the Scottish throne, in overthrowing Macbeth in 1056-7. Malcolm, in return for these services, granted in solemn covenant, the following unusual privileges to MacDuff and all his posterity:

1st. On all occasions when the royal standard was unfurled, this family was privileged to lead the van in the Scottish Army.

2d. They had the right of placing the crown upon the heads of the future kings at their coronation. Isabel, daughter of Duncan MacDuff, and last in the line of Fife (who married the earl of Buchan) crowned Robert the Bruce in 1306.

3d. If they or their kindred to the ninth degree committed a slaughter, they were promised a special claim of sanctuary and obtained remission of all crime by paying an atonement to the relatives who survived the slain.

Malcolm also granted the province of Moray to the Seach or Shaw (eldest son of MacDuff) whose seat was established at Rothiemancus on the Spey in Inverness where the chiefs of this Clan resided for centuries. Their badge was the red whortleberry.—Their motto, Fide et Fortitudine (By Faithfulness and Bravery).

The shield of MacDuff's Coat of Arms bore a red lion on a gold ground. The Armorial bearings of his son, 'The Shaw of Rothiemancus,' are thus described:—1st and 4th qrs. of shield, or, a lion rampant, gules armed, languid, azure. 2d and 3d qrs. Argent, a fir tree growing from a mound in base, proper and on a canton in dexter chief of the field a dexter hand couped fesswise, holding a dagger, all proper. Crest: A demi-lion, gules, holding in the dexter paw, a sword, proper.

In 1595 or soon afterwards, this clan bereft of their chief who forfeited his lances, were in part dispersed, though many joined the McPhersons and McIntoshes thus forming a part of the great Clan Chattan while retaining their distinctive name."

Still another writer who has made the subject a study, after many researches condenses the information he has gained in the following brief communication :

"The Shaws of Scotland were a branch of the Clan McIntosh, their progenitor being 'Shiah' surnamed DeShawe, one of the sons of MacDuff, third earl of Fife, Scotland. The surname anglicized, means a thicket, or grove. The baronetcy of Granoch came by marriage with the family of Shawe, of Sanchie; and continued in the family until the reign of James V. During the reign of Alexander III, John DeShawe was one of the witnesses to a donation which John, the son of Reginald, made of lands to the monks of Paisley in 1284. In the year 1484, George Shaw was Lieutenant Colonel of a Regiment of Horse, commanded by the earl of Dumferline at the battle of Worcester. For his valor and loyalty, his sovereign conferred on him the honor of knighthood. A little way south of the castle of Erskine, stands the house of Bargaran, the seat of John Shaw, whose ancestors have for more than three hundred years possessed these lands."

Now as surnames were not in common use until the latter part of the tenth century, and the son of MacDuff received his as early as 1056-7, may we not reasonably conclude that the name of Shaw originated with him; and that the early Shaws of England were, in reality, his descendants who had emigrated hither either before or after the partial dispersion of Clan Shaw of Scotland?

First Shaw House in Hampton.

First permanent Shaw house erected in Hampton, N. H., as it appeared after being enlarged and repaired when about one hundred years old. This house was standing in 1850, but was demolished a few years afterwards to be replaced by a smaller and more modern structure, it being at this time two hundred years of age. [This cut was furnished at the expense of Hon. Oliver W. Shaw of Austin, Minn.]

SONG OF THE OLD HOMESTEAD

On the green hillside I stand with pride,
A loved and peaceful king ;
They've made my throne a happy home,
Where loved ones work and sing.
In the days gone by, I was thought supreme,
By those who have long been dead ;
Their hearts would throb when they heard my name,
The name of the old homestead.

My walls were built in the olden time,
My rooms made long and wide ;
And whether in youth or manhood's prime,
My subjects were true and tried.
How proud was I of that grand old stock—
And they were as proud of me ;
Their hearts and my doors scarce needed a knock,
To open them wide and free.

The voices of children resounded here,
Their songs echoed far and wide ;
And whether they wandered far or near,
They loved me with honest pride.
I have known them come long miles by land,
Long miles from over the sea,
To grasp my inmates by the hand,
And look once more on me.

I've marked how the eyes of departing ones,
With rushing tears would fill ;
Though dwelling in grander, newer homes,
They loved the old home still.
And when death called my chiefs away,
Brave hearts were ever at hand,
In filial reverence to obey
The Father's just command.
For love would inspire and keep away,
Those hearts in an unbroken band.

Years come and go with their changing round,
Yet my frame remains the same ;
And though marks of age on my walls are found,
These old oak beams prove game.
Then gather around my hearthstone !
My rooms with namesakes fill !
Leave wide these old doors open,
That all who will may come in !
And may you long live, and I long stand,
The same loved homestead, still.

WEARE N. SHAW.

Kensington, N. H.

ROGER SHAW.

Roger Shaw is first mentioned in history as appearing at General Court* from Cambridge, Mass., in 1636, where in 1638, he was made freeman†, having previously bought two hundred acres of land and built him a house on the south side of Arrow street.

In regard to his birth, we gather from the Harleian Records taken from the Register of St. Peter's, Cornhill, London, Eng., the following: "1594, September 1st, Sunday, christening of Roger Shaw, sonne of Ralph Shaw, Vintnor at the Sunne, on Cornhill; borne Monday ye 26th of August." Although it is not positively proven that the christening alluded to was that of the immigrant Roger Shaw above mentioned, yet the probabilities are strongly in favor of such a conclusion, as no subsequent record of him has been found in the old country; and the fact that he was accounted competent by General Court to be installed Vintnor and Keeper of the Ordinary at Hampton, N. H., where he finally settled, would seem to imply that he had

*A term applied to the legislative body of the Massachusetts Colony.

†One who in the early days of the colonies, held the right of franchise. No one was allowed that right without first becoming a member of the Church. The laws were made by a quorum of the "Assistants" or "Magistrates," sent out and commissioned by the "Company" in London, Eng., which held the charter. The law compelling church membership was passed by the "Assistants" in 1631. In 1676, five-sixths of the people of Boston were non-voters because they were not church members, and were thus shut out from any participation in the local government. It was customary however, for immigrants of the better class to attend the "General Court" in person, for the purpose of obtaining "grants" of land and permission to settle in the town they had selected for their future residence.

some previous knowledge of the business. In 1639, he was drawn juryman, and the following year was elected Town Clerk of Cambridge, Mass. He was also selectman for the same town for the years 1641, 1642, 1643 and 1645.

The settlement of Hampton, N. H., (formerly known as Winnacunnet) was authorized by General Court in 1638, and incorporated in 1639, Roger Shaw's name appearing as one of the petitioners. In 1640, he bought* of "John Crosse" land in the new town, and November 15, 1647 he obtained a grant† of lands from Charles II (then king of Great Britian) which, included with his former purchase, constituted a large estate. In 1648, he moved to Hampton, selling his real estate in Cambridge, Mass., consisting of a house and two hundred acres of land, and settled on his first purchase, some part of which is still owned by his descendants. The original house was enlarged and improved by his son Benjamin and grandson Edward, and was used in colonial times as a garrison [see frontispiece]. It was taken down, however, sometime in the early fifties to make room for a "modern one."

He seems to have been a man of prominence‡ among the early settlers, for from 1651 to 1653 he served as Representative to General Court, and was selectman in 1649 and 1654, and filled many other important offices. It may be here mentioned that the controversy arising from the occupancy of lands on the New Hampshire borders by authority of Massachusetts, was, in 1651, carried into General Court, and added much to the responsibilities of Representatives for that year, requiring unusual wisdom and ability. He was also the same year appointed "Commissioner for trying small cases." On the 26th of September, 1658, the town of Hampton appointed Roger Shaw first, on a Committee of three, together with the Town Clerk, "to examine all grants and appointments of lands, highways and such like, and to recorde the same in ye new Towne Book." On the 9th of February, 1659, the same committee were appointed "to lay out and record convenient highways to men's land in the towne and to allow satisfaction to the proprietors for the same according to their discretion:" which satisfaction was to be made from the town's land. He was for a time Vintnor and Keeper of the Ordinary in Hampton, and in 1650 was empowered and ordered by General Court "to sell wine or any sort of strong liquors to Christians and the Indians, as in his judgment shall seem meet and necessary, on just and urgent occasions, and not otherwise."

†The original deed is now in possession of Hon. Oliver W. Shaw, of Austin, Minn.

Roger Shaw m. 1st Ann——; 2d, Susanna, widow of William Tilton of Lynn, Mass., who d. January 28, 1655. She was known to have had two sons by her first marriage, namely, Abraham and Daniel Tilton, remembered in the will of Mr. Shaw made August 25, 1660§; probated August 10, 1661, after his death on May 29th of the same year. His eldest son, Joseph, was made sole executor of this will in which he is instructed to pay Abraham and Daniel Tilton their portion according to "Covenant," when they shall become of age. He also designates "Samuel Fogg and said Joseph as trustees, to order and direct my son Benjamin (then but twenty years old) until he comes to the age of twenty-one years, according to law in all things." Children, all by first wife, were as follows:

2. I. MARGARET² b. about 1634; m. Thomas Ward; d. Apr. 15, 1704.
3. II. JOSEPH², b. about 1635; m. Elizabeth Partridge.

- V. MARY², b. Nov. 26, 1639 ; d. Jan. or Feb. 1640.
5. VI. BENJAMIN², b. 1641 ; m. Esther Richardson ; d. 1717.
- VII. MARY², b. July 29, 1645 ; m. Thomas Parker, Jr. of whom but little information has been gleaned. In 1640, land was granted to wid. Judith Parker of Hampton, who, it is presumed, was his mother. At a Town meeting in the spring of 1663, "liberty was granted to Thomas Parker to come into the town and follow his trade," (that of shoemaker) although for some reason not recorded, there was a dissenting vote of nine prominent men*. They removed finally to Reading, Mass. Children's names (no dates obtained) were Samuel, Sarah, Deborah, Abigail, Ruth, Elizabeth.
- VIII. DELIVERANCE², (?) whose birth is not mentioned in any of the public records yet examined by the compiler of this work, according to "Savage" married Abraham Tilton, (probably, the son of her step-mother and Wm. Tilton, her first husband,) at Kittery, Me., 1669. Her will, dated Nov. 9, 1730, and probated July 2, 1733, names sons, Abraham, Samuel and Isaac ; daughters, Sarah Martin ; Mary, widow of Tristram Brown ; and Rebecca, widow of Thomas Darges. First kinsmen, John Lamb, and Abigail, widow of John Bell.

5. BENJAMIN² SHAW, b. in Cambridge, Mass., 1641; m. May 25, 1663, Esther, dau. of Ezekiel and Susannah Richardson. He lived with his father on the homestead, but was also a merchant and blacksmith. His account book is still in existence, and is an interesting relic of this very remarkable man. As soon as possible after the first saw mill was built in that region, (about 1658,) he built a new frame house which was constructed so as to be used as a garrison in times of war—was two stories in height, and was afterwards enlarged and improved by his son Edward, but early in the “fifties” it was demolished by his descendants to make room for a more modern structure. His name appears on the select list of voters prepared by the President and Council in 1680, from that of the selectmen of each town in New Hampshire when it was a royal Province, each one named therein being eligible to the office of Councilman and privileged to vote in their meetings. He is said to have had great ingenuity and skill in mechanics, and though the possessor of great wealth, made the gravestone which still marks his grave. In his will* dated Dec. 26, 1717, he mentions five sons and six daughters; he died, according to family records, Dec. 31, 1717, but according to the inscription on his gravestone, Jan 17, 1718. His widow, Esther, was generously remembered in his will, and lived on the homestead with their son Edward, the two being named therein as executors of the instrument. She died May 16, 1736, at the age of ninety-six years. Children—

In 1706 he was chosen Deacon of the First Congregational church in Hampton; was also Selectman for years. At the organization of a new church on the "Falls Side" in what was later incorporated as the town of Hampton Falls in which his residence was situated, he filled the same office, that of deacon, and was often chosen on committees for the adjustment of difficulties in the new town and church. In his will, proven Dec. 4, 1723, but two children were mentioned, "Elisabeth, (then a child,) and his only son, Samuel, who was to be brought up to good learning until he was fit to be put to college." Meshech Weare, one of the most distinguished men of his day, who having graduated from Harvard and fitted for the ministry while a young man, filled by degrees nearly, if not absolutely every office in church or state that came by gift of the people of his native state, and that, too, with eminent acceptability. He was Chief Justice of the Superior Court of New Hampshire, from 1776 to 1782 when he retired voluntarily, but when the State Constitution was formed in 1784, he was elected the first President without a dissenting vote. Declining a re-election the next year, he retired to private life and died Jan. 14, 1786, more honored than any other man of the times. He was interred at the "Hill" Hampton Falls, where there was a handsome monument erected by the State to his memory in 1853. Mr. Weare and his wife Elisabeth, occupied the homestead of her father, the "Old Shaw Mansion" at Hampton Falls, where he once entertained Gen. Washington while the latter was on a journey by horseback to Portsmouth, N. H. The room in which he slept was preserved many years, with great care and shown afterwards to visitors who were wont to gaze with awe on the canopied bed which had held the form of so noted a General and Statesman. Mrs. Elisabeth Weare died sometime between the years

1743 and 1746, having had two children, namely :

He lived on the homestead* of his father, Benjamin, enlarging the house and improving it in many ways. As described by the wife of a descendant and namesake, Mrs. Edward Shaw, (living in 1901), and who lived there until it was taken down, it was a large roomy structure, two stories in height, with a wide hall through the center of the building, and a handsome stairway with ballusters. In the "garret" was a chest painted in curious devices, which the immigrant Roger brought from England; also all the paraphernalia and implements used in those days when carding, spinning and weaving of wool, flax, and cotton, was numbered among the accomplishments of the wives and daughters of those early times. It was this house that was entered by lightning on Apr. 10, 1727. "Just after daybreak a most unexpected and terrific clap of thunder startled the inmates, while the lightning entered a room in which the aged mother, (Mrs. Esther Shaw,) was still in bed, splintering a table within four feet of her bed, entering a closet in another room where Mr. and Mrs. Shaw slept, smashing the crockery without opening the door, and from thence into the cellar where it moved two hogshheads in order to reach the foundation of the chimney, one of them being full, but what the contents were, 'deponent sayeth not.' None of the inmates of the house were injured, and the damage to the buildings was trifling compared to 'what might have been.'" Mr. Shaw d. Dec. 24, 1764. His children were all by his first wife, namely—

38. DAVID⁶ SHAW, b. in Hampton, Mar. 15, 1786 ; m., Apr. 18, 1805, Sarah, daughter of Nathaniel Morrill and settled in Sanbornton, N. H. He was a farmer, mill owner, and Captain in the N. H. Militia, besides doing an extensive business in lumbering, buying ship masts, &c., &c., which he drove down the Merrimac river to the sea coast. His wife, meanwhile, brought up her family of fourteen children, and to a great extent managed the farm and made and sold tons of butter and cheese in her life time, besides fattening hogs, cattle and poultry for the market in addition to the necessary supply for their large family. Indeed, the work accomplished by this worthy couple seems almost incredible to us of the present day, who know nothing of the hardships of that period. Mr. Shaw and his sons cleared the second farm, (which consisted of one hundred acres of tillage and pasture lands), while purchasing one hundred and fifty more which remained in a wild state, furnishing lumber for himself and the market. He built upon this farm a two-story brick house—the brick being manufactured by themselves from clay found on this purchase. So pleasant was the prospect of the forests and surrounding country from this large and commodious homestead, that it was given the name, by unanimous consent, Forest Hill Place. It is related in the "History of Sanbornton" that Mr. Shaw with five others built a chapel and engaged as preacher, Rev. Elijah Shaw, a kinsman, for pastor. He was chosen also, in 1850, as a delegate to the Constitutional Convention of his State. Mr. Shaw died Sept. 9, 1852. The names of their fourteen children are as follows :

9. EBENEZER⁴ SHAW, b. in Hampton, N. H., Oct. 7, 1713; m., Nov. 19, 1738, Anna, daughter of Thomas and Abiah Philbrick of Hampton. They came to Pearisontown, (now Standish, Me.,) in 1762; took possession of a tract of land consisting of two hundred acres and a mill privilege, granted him by the proprietors of the township, and bought in addition, lot No. 42 of Thomas Morton which last is still in the possession of his descendants. Mr. Shaw was a mechanic, being carpenter, millwright and cooper, besides attending to a large farm and saw mill, the latter built by himself, and the first ever operated in that town. It may be interesting to state here that Mr. Shaw lived until his majority with Moses Pearson, the first sheriff of Cumberland County, his father's death when he was a child, rendering this necessary. After his marriage, and as children were born to them, he, being of a religious turn of mind and a zealous churchman, was so desirous of bringing them up in a God-fearing manner, that, previous to his removal to Standish in 1762, he removed from Hampton to Sargent's Island, in order that they might grow up uncontaminated by the impure associations of the town. It is said that Mr. Shaw's success in business enabled him to give each of his sons a farm when they started out in life for themselves, situated in quite near proximity to his own. They were all born in Hampton. Mr. Shaw died Mar. 13, 1782; his wife Anna, Dec. 12, 1804, leaving nine children, eighty-two grandchildren, one hundred and nine great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild. Names of children were—

6. THOMAS⁵ SHAW, b. in Hampton, N. H., Oct. 10, 1753; m. 1st, Nov. 20, 1777, Anna, daughter of William Wood of Gorham, Me., b. July 20, 1751; she died May 18, 1808. He m. 2d, Nov. 20, 1809, Mrs. Susanna Thomes, widow of Daniel Thomes of Standish, and daughter of Thomas Smith of that town; she died Feb. 11, 1825. Mr. Shaw m. 3d, Mrs. Lydia Partridge, widow of Jotham Partridge, and twin daughter of Samuel and Dolly (Day) Prentiss; she died in Standish, April 3, 1858. Mr. Shaw was a Revolutionary soldier and pensioner, and by occupation, cooper and farmer. He was honored by his townsmen with the offices of Selectmen and Collector; and built the first grist mill in town which was operated by a wind-mill, and considered a curiosity by the people of that region as well as a great convenience for the farmers, in whose diet, corn then played so conspicuous a part. Mr. Shaw was widely known for his facility in rhyming, and often on public occasions spoke impromptu in that style. Commencing at a very early age, he wrote almost constantly in rhyme, making passing events which came to his knowledge, as well as religious and temperance themes, the subjects of his effusions. While sick in the army hospital, he commenced to write out his experience in the war which when finished after his return home, contained over a hundred stanzas, and records many things worthy of preservation. Still he kept on writing until a short time before his death, when the accumulation was said to be so large as to fill a good sized trunk. He often wrote out two or three long poems in an evening which he had composed during the day while about his work in the field or workshop. He also wrote out as far as he was able, the genealogy of his family from the emigrant Roger Shaw down to the latest period of his life, which was preserved in the family, and the work continued by his son, Daniel. It is said that he possessed a keen sense of humor, and made many laughable speeches still remembered by the aged people of his town. When rallied just before his last marriage on his partiality for partridge, he retorted, "You can catch your partridges and eat them if you like, I am going to get a tame one and keep it." His dislike of some of the modern innovations on old customs in church, as well as in home life, often found expression in language more forcible than polite. He was a zealous attendant at church, but when the bass viol and violin was introduced for the first time as aids in the music, he deliberately arose after the reading of the hymn, and as he passed down the aisle on his way out, remarked in an audible voice, "you will now please sing and fiddle the psalm," and went home to write a poem on the inconsistency of using for sacred purposes, what the devil had invented for his own use. Mr. Shaw died in Standish, Oct. 20, 1838, aged 85 years. Children, all born in Standish, were :

cordingly the work was immediately commenced, and the church was completed and dedicated in October of the same year, and pronounced a marvel of beauty with all the most modern appointments. Mr. Bean's death, which took place in September, 1899, was regretted by the whole community, and an irreparable loss to the business operations of the place in which he lived, his employees turning out in a body to follow his remains to their resting place in the village cemetery. Though a handsome monument marks the spot where he was laid to rest after a life of the most ceaseless activity, his benefactions everywhere visible in this immediate vicinity will long bear witness to his public generosity, and perpetuate his memory in the hearts of the residents of West Bethel. His wife, Mrs. Luciada Bean survives him and has a charming residence near West Bethel, (Birchmont), and has always contributed much to the general welfare and prosperity of that community. His christian principles united with his naturally conscientious mind, conspired to render him an exemplary member of society, as well as a

A sketch of the life and character of Rev. Sargent Shaw, written by Rev. D. M. Graham for The Baptist Quarterly of April 1866, is so interesting that the following extracts are hereto appended:

"The religious impressions of Sargent Shaw when but a mere lad were of a noticeable character although a natural modesty or reticence prevented his making any public profession until the year 1809. For the same reasons, and from the fact that the cares and expense of a family devolved upon him, (the Baptists of that time with whom he and his father had united, believing that like St. Paul, preachers should "work with their own hands and be chargeable to none,") he did not at first obey the call to preach, his conscientious scruples preventing a compliance with the entreaties of prominent ministers of that denomination until 1828, when he was ordained to the Christian ministry. His struggles to support a family without the help of a salary and at the same time to fulfill all his obligations as pastor and preacher were vividly portrayed by himself during life, when at last he became convinced that in order to reap the best results from ministerial labor the whole mind should be given to that subject, and when health and strength giving way he was obliged to discontinue preaching in a regular way although often called to officiate at funerals and at times speak in public meetings against slavery and intemperance. During the long contest on the subject of slavery both before and during the Civil war, he was among the first to plead the cause of the slave and was never intimidated by the ranting cry of his opposers who despised "political preaching," but stood his ground in the front ranks of the "abolition party." When at length the anti-slavery amendment to the Constitution was proclaimed, he exultingly cried, "It is enough, mine eyes have seen the salvation of the Lord for this nation? Now Lord, what wait I for?" His last address in a temperance meeting, (when age had begun to tell on his long enfeebled physical powers,) was given at a Convention in Gorham before the close of the war when many were afraid of advocating temperance measures lest those hitherto loyal to the Union should divide on that question, and the power of the administration become weakened. On hearing these objections urged, the blood of the aged man was stirred and he could keep his seat no longer, but entered into the discussion with the fire of youth and carried conviction to the minds of his hearers. When his speech was concluded, very few present had any respect for a patriotism that would not go hand in hand with the strictest temperance principles. Mr. Shaw was justly regarded as one of the wisest and safest counselors in cases of difficulty in ecclesiastical affairs—his warm and loving heart inclining him to the side of charity toward an accused brother until evidence of his guilt was indisputable. Then his faithfulness in warning or rebuke knew no restraints from the fear or favor of others—friend and foe were alike treated with impartiality. By his consistent life, his unswerving fidelity to principle, his unshrinking moral courage as well as by his fair and cogent reasoning, he did much to render unpopular truth an efficient force in all the region where he was known. His natural endowments were quite beyond the common lot; but his sense of propriety was so acute, that his consciousness of possessing powers which he could not bring into exercise according to his ideal was ever present, and often rendered him timid and shrinking in the accomplishment of tasks for which he was fully competent. When told by his physician during his last illness that his case was not serious, and that he would be sick but a few days, he seemed disappointed and replied as if in prayer, "Why this delay? I am ready for the journey; nevertheless, 'not my will, but thine be done' ". He then gave charge that no eulogiums be pronounced at his funeral—"say only I was a sinner saved by grace," were almost his last words, and on a Sabbath morning he responded to the summons, "Come up higher," leaving a wide vacancy in the home where he was loved and revered with a passion akin to idolatry.

Me., Apr. 28, 1804; died Oct. 3, 1847. Mr. Shaw lived on his father's homestead and followed farming—was also a cooper, having followed the business for over seventy-five years. He was a man noted for his upright life and fervent piety, his meditations often being expressed on paper, showing his innate goodness of heart and reverence for the Creator; such writings have been carefully preserved and cherished by the son who succeeded him on the old homestead. He had spent considerable time and mōney in collecting the records of all Shaw families in his knowledge, which, with those kept by his father, furnished much interesting information for the genealogist and were generously passed over to the compiler of these records to be used in this work. Some of his old-time reminiscences were published in the Portland Transcript. Mr. Shaw died June 17, 1874, in the house in which he was born. Their children were—

He has been a valuable assistant in this work, and has spared no pains in trying to further the enterprise. The large accumulation of records in his possession were generously placed at the disposal of the author, and was the chief incentive in attempting a printed genealogy, as a unanimous feeling existed among this branch of the Shaws, that the results of so much labor were of sufficient value to render it important that they should be put into more permanent form which would at the same time render a circulation possible.

He was educated in Andrews Academy and in 1831, was ordained at Sanbornton as a minister of the Christian denomination and preached at times in Exeter, Hampton, Kensington, Franklin and other places. He was a man of superior ability, and of true nobility of character. Unlike many of the ministers of his sect at that time, he was an ardent advocate of education, especially in the ministry, and urged its importance whenever an opportunity occurred. In his own family, he consistently carried out these principles, and each one of his seven children received a good education. He was for many years chairman of the school board in Kensington and was at one time editor of the Christian Herald, (a church organ,) published in Exeter, N. H., where his editorials and other writings created considerable interest. As a preacher, he spoke with energy and force, and was eminently successful as an evangelist. He represented Kensington in the State Legislature for 1847—8, and spent his last days in this his native town where he died Nov. 26, 1878. The children of this couple were—

As the name in this branch is now extinct, not much definite information can be obtained for this work. The mother was living with her son and daughter at Hallowell, in 1830 ; and it seems she must have been the widow of a man by the name of Sutherland either before or after her marriage with Mr. Shaw, as she was known to have had a son, Rev. James Sutherland.

12. JOHN⁶ WEARE SHAW, b. in Kensington, June 3, 1788; m., 1st, Sarah, daughter of Weare Nudd; 2d, Ruth, daughter of Thomas Currier of Newton, N. H., who died Nov. 20, 1838; 3d, Mrs. Sarah (Stillson) Goodwin; 4th, Elizabeth Stillson, sister of third wife. He was a soldier in the War of 1812, but when peace was restored, settled on his father's farm at Orchard Hill, Kensington, a farm which had been cultivated and improved with the most careful nicety by its owner, and of which he was very justly proud. Mr. Shaw always took an active interest in the affairs of his native town, and held many offices therein. Aside from these activities, "he made a profession of religion" in early life, and leaving his father's church, (the Presbyterian) from conscientious scruples, he and his brother Elijah united with the Christian church, whose tenets accorded better with their own opinions; and he used to hold meetings in various places expounding the "word" and exhorting sinners to repentance. As an example of some of the peculiarities of this denomination, it is said that at one time, on the death of a relative, he was sent to a distant town for a minister to attend the funeral, but while on the way, he had one of his "impressions", making it his duty to go to a certain place and hold a meeting, which was further emphasized by the passage of Scripture—"Let the dead bury their dead," but go thou and preach the gospel, recurring to his mind. This call was too important to be slighted, so he left the dead to shift for himself and hastened to obey the command. When the time came for the funeral to commence, no minister appearing, an aged deacon who was present was prevailed upon to make a prayer and the mourners were allowed to follow their dead to burial without first listening to the usual two hours' discourse. Like his father and grandfather before him, Mr. Shaw was a natural mechanic, and few implements or conveniences needed on the farm failed of being supplied by his deft hands and fertile brain. He was noted for his hospitality to strangers, and had a room especially prepared for all such. Seats were given them at the family board, where current events were freely discussed; and when supper was over and they had delivered up their pipes, tobacco, and matches, they were shown to the sleeping room assigned them; and in the morning, after a good breakfast and attendance at the family devotions, were sent on their way rejoicing. That he was a radical in politics as well as religion, the following anecdote related by a descendant will plainly show. "Moving back from the table one morning and taking from his capacious vest pocket a nail which he used for a toothpick, and with which he was industriously picking away at his teeth (every one of which was as sound as he considered his own religious and political doctrines) he remarked to a visitor, 'I don't believe anyone can be a Whig and a Christian at the same time!' 'Why, father,' exclaimed his more liberal wife, 'what do you think of uncle So and So?' calling the relative by his name. 'He is a Whig and a good church member too.' But the good man kept on picking his teeth and answered not a word—evidently considering the question (like most of his sex at that time,) one entirely beyond the comprehension and legitimate sphere of womankind.” Mr. Shaw died Apr. 23, 1852: his children, all born in Kensington, were—

He then turned his attention to the study of medicine and took the degree of M. D. at Cincinnati Medical College as oculist which enabled him to effect a cure of his eyes. In 1878, Mr. Shaw was ordained for the gospel ministry by the Northern Illinois Christian (Advent) Conference; but in 1896, removed to Nashua, N. 13. ELIJAH⁶ SHAW, JR., b. in Kensington, Dec. 19, 1793; was a clergyman, and it is said commenced to preach when but sixteen years of age, being licensed by the Christian Society two years later to engage in the work of the Christian ministry. His talents and success in preaching were soon recognized, as well as his executive ability, and he was appointed on the Board of Home Missions by that society and traveled and preached throughout the New England States and many parts of the West. On Mar. 31, 1814, he was ordained pastor of the church at Kensington, being then but little over twenty-one years of age. He also wrote quite extensively, being the author of "Sentiments of Christians," and other works, in defense of the doctrines of his denomination. He was editor of one of the first Christian newspapers in this country, "The Christian Journal," published at Exeter, N. 16. ELIJAH⁷ MORRILL SHAW was born in Kensington, N. H., July 16, 1826. His career through life, ever being of an upward tendency, he became in every sense a fine type of the self-made man. His boyhood and early youth were spent in attendance on the common schools and in the cotton factory of Exeter, N. H. Inheriting from his ancestors a fondness for mechanical pursuits, in 1848, (after a year or more in Phillips Academy), he entered the employ of the Exeter Manufacturing Co., thus beginning a career extending through a period of more than forty years of steadily increasing prominence in the cotton and woolen manufactures of New England. For his services in the employ of the above mentioned company he received at first the meagre sum of eight-five cents per day—this sum being gradually increased until before his retirement from active business life, he received an annual stipend of $7,500. As stated in his "Reminiscences", (a sketch of his early life and the customs of the times during that period, written by himself, and first printed in The Exeter News Letter), he never asked an employer for an increase of wages, was never discharged from a position once held, never was heard to complain of his work, and never left a position except for the purpose of filling a more desirable one elsewhere. He acquired while comparatively a young man, a practical knowledge of every phase of the manufacture of both cotton and wool fabrics; and his ability for constructing independent lines of action, made him the ideal agent and successful manager. From Exeter he went to Newburyport, Mass., and from thence to Great Falls, N. H., as a loom-fixer. In 1853, he was employed as overseer in The Victory Mills in Saratoga Township, N. Y., remaining four years, and then went to Lewiston, Me., where he was overseer in the Bates Mill. Obeying his country's call to arms, at the time of the Rebellion, he entered the army in 1861, serving in the 1st, 10th, and 29th Me. Regiments. During his service in the 1st Regt. of Infantry he was commissioned 2d Lieut. of Co. F. On Oct. 3, 1861, he was made Adjutant of the 10th Regt. of Maine Volunteers, and on Mar. 12, 1863, he was commissioned Captain of the same regiment. Capt. Shaw had also before the war, held offices by commission in the Maine and New Hampshire militia and after its close he was at one time Commander of the Maine Department of the G. A. R. He belonged to The Sons of the American Revolution, and was a member of the Loyal Legion. He was also a Free Mason and a Granger. While in Lewiston, Mr. Shaw was a member of the Common Council and served as its President. He also held other offices of trust in that city. From 1863 to 1866, Capt. Shaw was with the Everett Mills in Lawrence, Mass., and for three years afterward, was agent for the Monadnoc woolen mill in Leominster, Mass. He then built the Farwell mills in Lisbon, Me., and managed them until 1884. While here, he was elected

Representative to the State Legislature for 1881-2. He next engaged as agent of the Great Falls mills which he placed on a paying basis; but in 1888 was called to Nashua, N. H., to become agent of the Nashua Manufacturing Co., the leading corporation there, and filled the position until 1891, when he resigned and retired from all business of a money-making nature. He was soon after appointed Chairman of the Board of Commissioners from the State of New Hampshire to the Columbian Exposition to be held in Chicago in 1893, and performed the manifold and difficult duties pertaining to that office with discretion and unquestioned ability, as well as to the State's credit. Capt. Shaw, whose home was now established in Nashua, became as prominent here in religious and business organizations as in his former places of residence. He was a Director of the Nashua Trust Co., and in 1894 was chosen Treasurer of the New Hampshire Baptist Association and filled the office for five years. He was an active member of the first Baptist church in Nashua, and contributed liberally to its support as well as to the building fund for the Crown Hill Mission church, after donating the land upon which it was erected. He was also an ardent supporter of prohibition and all law enforcement. Mr. Shaw has for a number of years been interested in genealogical research, and has been engaged in collecting records of the Kensington Branch of Shaws, meeting with wonderful success. It is through his generosity and by means of his untiring and persistent efforts that this branch of the descendants of Roger Shaw are so well represented from the 4th generation to the present. In 1899, Mr. Shaw was elected business manager of Colby Academy of New London, N. H., which office he held until his death. Ever after his installment in this office, it seemed his uppermost desire to see this institution freed from debt, and enabled to enter an enlarged sphere of usefulness. For this, he prayed, worked, and planned unceasingly. He was often heard to say, "If I can only live to see this debt wiped out, and the school lifted to its feet, it is all I ask; then I can say, 'Lord, let now thy servant depart in peace.'" On Feb. 23, of the present year (1903), he attended the Evangelical and Educational Conference held in Manchester, N. H., where he made an effective appeal before the Conference in behalf of the Academy which met a ready response; and the first notes of a triumphant song of victory were heard with rapture. Hastening away while the echoes of his earnest plea were still lingering in the ears of those in attendance, he repaired to the old homestead in Kensington where he was born, and where his twin brother, Thomas C. Shaw, still lived, though suffering from what was considered a fatal disease. That night, with the sweet assurance that his prayers and hopes were becoming realized, he lay down to sleep in the old home of his childhood, to awake in "the house not made with hands, eternal and in the Heavens." Or, as one remarked, "He was not, for God took him." Mr. Shaw married, April 29, 1852, Amantha C. Sanborn of Brentwood, N. H., by whom he had four children. After her death, he married, in 1867, Miss Mary E. Davison of Prince Edward's Island. Three children were the fruit of this last marriage. The names of all are as follows:

20. BENJAMIN⁸ FRANKLIN SHAW, a man whose genius and versatility of intellect deserve an extended notice in this work, was born in Monmouth, Me., Nov. 22, 1832. He attended the common schools in winter until he was 16 years of age, and a few years later was fitted for college at Tops-ham Academy. His parents being in straitened circumstances and in need of his assistance in the maintenance of their family, he relinquished the most ardent hope of his life, namely, a collegiate education, and set about the task of alleviating the family's needs. This was facilitated by his obtaining clerkships in business houses as opportunity offered, which he invariably filled to the satisfaction not only of his employers, but also of his parents who were always benefitted thereby. Mr. Shaw married, Jan. 20, 1853, at Gardiner, Me., Harriet Nowell Howard of Haverhill, Mass., and in the fall of this year moved to Philadelphia, Penn., where after spending a year as local agent in a sash and blind business, he entered the employ of the publishers, Lippincott, Grambo & Co., now the J. B. Lippincott Co., in whose office he showed so much ability as an under clerk that he was soon promoted and given general charge of the clerical work and paid a handsome salary. In 1859, after building a beautiful villa in Germantown, Penn., and enjoying the sweet delights of a well-appointed home, he began to weary of clerical life and resolved to quit the desk. Having seen the need of improvement in the text-books used for primary instruction in geography, he compiled his Primary Geography on the plan of the object method of instruction, which received high commendation from eminent educators, and was introduced into many of the schools of Pennsylvania and other States. Encouraged by the reception of this geography, he at once commenced the compilation of another for advanced pupils. This combined math-emational, physical and political geography with important historical facts, and was called The Comprehensive Geography. His work on these text-books, which were pronounced original and progressive, was chiefly done at night after his work in the office was over, and for three years, midnight often found him at his self-appointed task. Early in 1865, finding that protracted night-work had so impaired his health as to render it necessary that he should have more exercise in the open air, he secured government claims in Kansas, and attempted cattle-raising. But after a year's experience made bitter by the death of his cattle in an uncommonly severe winter, the burning of his hay by Indians and the duplicity of his partner in the business, he returned to his home and family in Danvers, Mass., not so well off in purse, though much better in health. After his return from the West, he became general manager of the outside operations and investments of the Dr. J. C. Ayer Co. of Lowell, Mass., which office he held two years, residing with his family at Danvers. It was during this period that he invented the "seamless stocking" and the automatic loom for its production. This stocking, which he afterwards improved, was patented to him Apr. 23, 1867. The resignation of his position with the J. C. Ayer Co. was followed by the sale of his beautiful home in Danvers and a number of reverses which darkened a period of nearly eight years during which he employed his time in inventions. He invented processes for making gelatine, glue, and superphosphate, and a process for destroying the offensive gases of rendering establishments, which were used with gratifying results; and he also did some literary work for which he had much native talent. His humorous story of "Joab Quint" makes every reader laugh till his sides ache, and his essay upon the Slaughtering of Domestic Animals was awarded the prize in 1872, by the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Although he found little time for indulgence in verse-making, his poems show the finest instincts and unmistakable talent in this line of literature. The seamless stocking as originally invented, not being entirely satisfactory to him, had been lying in seclusion with its companion, the loom, until such time as he could devote himself to the task of improving it, which he accomplished in 1877, by introducing gussets into the heel and instep. As improved, it quite satisfied his ambition, which was to make the best fitting stocking art could produce, and soon became famous as the "Shawknit Stocking". It was patented to him Feb. 12, 1878, when he had succeeded in founding the Shaw Stocking Co. of Lowell, Mass., with a capital of $30,000, for its manufacture. The business of this company which he managed until his decease, increased to such an extent that before 1890 it had a capital of $360,000 and operated 275 looms, employing nearly 500 persons. In 1880, Mr. Shaw took his loom to England and exhibited it in London to manufacturers from every European country, and at the palace of Westminster to the Lord High Chancellor, and sold the English patent to an English company for $75,000. It was the first Jacquard circular knitting machine—also the first machine capable in itself of producing a stocking without seams, and was such an advance in the art of knitting as to make its inventor the compeer of Lee, who invented the first stocking-frame. It made quite a sensation in England, and though operatives in Leicester threatened riots should it be shown there, it was endorsed by the highest authorities on textile manufactures, and Mr. Shaw was banqueted by English knitters before leaving London. In 1879, Mr. Shaw bought 500 acres of land in Moultonborough, N. H., overlooking Lake Winnepesaukee, which contained a natural park, now known as Ossipee Mt. Park, and in March, 1882, the people of Moultonborough in town meeting assembled, named the highest peak of Ossipee mountain Mt. Shaw in his honor, by which name it has ever since been officially known. It was here he created a summer home where he entertained John G. Whittier, Lucy Larcom, Irene Jerome, and other noted persons whose refined characters and literary tastes rendered them most congenial company. Ossipee Mt. Park was, indeed, an idyllic home, and he had hoped to enjoy here, through old age "the growing and the falling of the leaf": but alas! on the 20th of Nov., 1890, he was carried from it in an enfeebled condition, (after a short sickness), to his home in Lowell, where he suffered a relapse, and on Dec. 11, of the same year, passed to "the better world", with a strong faith in God's merciful love, and the immortality of the soul. The following touching lines by his son, Ralph H. Shaw, a poet of acknowledged merit, express the tender regard in which he was held by this son, who will never forget his father's loving companionship in the old haunts about their summer home:

This is my consolation:—though no more
 As in remembered summers I shall be Among these hills with him, I feel that he
 Who knew them long and in his bosom bore
 Great love for them, will seek them o'er and o'er
 And oft among them bear me company—
 So much of his clear vision giving me,
 That I shall find more beauty than before
 In yonder purple mountains, yonder lake
 Now golden in the sunset, and, hard by,
 The woods that whisper, Peace!—Beloved spirit!
 He did not all the beauty here forsake:
 From what is fair on earth men do not die—
 'Tis part of what in heaven they inherit.

To Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were born six children, namely:

21. JOSEPH⁸ HOWARD SHAW, b. in Monmouth, Me.,
Mar. 31, 1835 ; attended common schools and Topsham Academy ; made several sea voyages, (both foreign and along the coast,) serving before the mast, while yet a minor ; served in the army during the Rebellion in the Department of the Gulf in the 13th Regt. of Maine Infantry ; also in the 91st Regt. of U. S. Infantry, colored. During his service in the army he was several times promoted, serving first as private ; afterwards, corporal ; then Act'g Ordinance Serg't ; 1st Lieut. ; Act'g Ordinance Officer ; A. A.
Quartermaster and A. A. Commissary of Subsistence. His accounts with the United States were reviewed twenty-five years after the close of the war, resulting in a balance shown in his favor. He has been prominently connected with the

Joseph H. Stewart.

G. A. R. organization having served as Commander of the Post at Saco, Me., two full terms,—two years. Mr. Shaw's standing in the city of Saco where he resides is evinced by his being elected Alderman for three consecutive terms. He was also Inspector of Buildings for 1895 and 1896. In politics, Mr. Shaw has always been a republican since the formation of the party which elected him as their Representative to the Maine Legislature for the term of 1897-8. Mr. Shaw was married Dec. 1, 1860, to Mrs. Catherin Maria Stanton, widow of Elijah K. Stanton, and daughter of Hiram and Lucy (Crowell) Bowe of Saco, formerly of Toppsham, Me., and after living in Biddeford a few years, he built him a residence in Saco, where he has ever since resided. He has been employed by the Saco Water Power Machine Shop Company and its successor, The Saco and Pettee Machine Shops, since July, 1868, as patternmaker—the most of the time as overseer of the Pattern Department. In his choice of occupation it will be seen that Mr. Shaw inherited from his father a love for mechanics as well as his capabilities in this line, where his success and reliability have been most apparent. Mr. Shaw has also rendered valuable assistance in furnishing records, in copying and forwarding the wills of his ancestors in the early generations which have always remained in possession of his family; and in many other ways giving aid and encouragement to the compiler of this work. To Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were born six children, namely:

- I. FRED⁹ FELTON, b. in Biddeford, Jan. 7, 1862; d. Jan. 15, 1869.
- II. MARIA⁹ HILDEGARD, b. in Biddeford, July 8, 1865; m. Oct. 11, 1890, Milo L. Decker; have resided in Biddeford and Saco. Children, as follows:

*The date of this birth being the latest recorded in "Shaw Records," (in accordance with an ancient Scotch custom once existing in war times,) it has been the fancy of the compiler to confer upon this child the title of "Daughter of the Clan Shaw."

RALPH⁹ HENRY SHAW was born in Fisher's Lane, Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa., Apr. 11, 1860. He has resided in Lowell, Mass., since 1877. During the interval between 1878 and 1898, he served the Shaw Stocking Company of Lowell in several important office capacities; but in 1899, engaged with the C. I. Hood Co. of Lowell, as advertising writer and designer, which position he still holds. Mr. Shaw, always of a poetic tendency, began to express himself in verse at a very early age; his name becoming pleasantly familiar to many, as that of a true poet—a "sweet and natural singer," as the critics have called him. He has been a welcome contributor to many of the leading periodicals, and has issued three volumes of his poetical writings—"Poems", in 1885; "In Many Moods," in 1889; and "Legend of the Trailing Arbutus and Other Poems," in 1898. The first of these volumes, which included many of his earliest efforts, won the commendation of Whittier, to whom it gave the feeling of "broader horizons and mountain presence," and who found in this volume "a sweet and delicate confession of the author's love of nature which promises much." Mr. Shaw's poems, which cannot be reviewed at length here, are marked by directness and freedom from affectation, have the beauty of simplicity, and appeal to persons who love nature and pure sentiment. Many of them are lyrical and touch the heart, lingering long in the memory; others are narrative and descriptive, charming with their verisimilitude. "The Bear Hunt" and "Camp Ossipee" abound in fine delineations of lake and mountain scenery, the former exhibiting a tender regard for the preservation of animal life that has something of the flavor of Wordsworth and Robert Burns about it. Ever a close student of nature, Mr. Shaw sings of her beauties as one who loves them and is touched by them, not as one who goes afield after literary material. The themes of his legendary poems, (with one or two exceptions,) are myths of the Algonquins, but a strong human interest is given them. In fact, Mr. Shaw's poetic talent has become so well known, that he is admired for the qualities of heart and brain which inspire his poems as much as for their literary merits; and he enjoys the friendship and approbation of many well-known literary people. On May 18, 1881, Mr. Shaw married Miss Mary Abbie Choate of Lowell, and they have had five children, namely:

- I. RALPH¹⁰ CHOATE, b. Apr. 29, 1892; d. Sept. 3, 1884.
- II. BENJAMIN¹⁰ CHOATE, b. Nov. 4, 1884.
- III. PAUL¹⁰ HERVEY, b. Feb. 25, 1886.
- IV. WARREN¹⁰ WALDO, b. Nov. 16, 1887.
- V. ALICE¹⁰ DOROTHY, b. Apr. 18, 1891; was run over by a trolley car, and died Apr. 20, 1895.

CALEB⁵ SHAW, b. in Hampton, N. H., in 1725; married and settled in Falmouth, (now Portland, Me.,) in 1760, and set up a shop on Middle St., as saddler and harness-maker. This was the first building that took fire when the town was bombarded by "Mowatt" on Oct. 18, 1775. Mr. Shaw was the oldest military officer in the State, or (as it was then called,) "province of Maine," in the war of 1812. He was known to have had the following children :

- 2 I. JOSIAH⁶, b. in Hampton, N. H., in 1751; m. Rebecca Cox; d. Nov. 10, 1804.
- II. SAMUEL⁶, bp. in Falmouth, Oct. 18, 1767; married and had children as follows:
 1. *David*⁷, bp. Apr. 22, 1787, in Portland, Me.
 2. *Nancy*⁷, bp. Aug. 31, 1788, in Portland.
 3. *Mary*⁷ J., bp. Aug. 14, 1806, in Portland.
 4. *Hilton*⁷, bp. Nov. 12, 1809, in Portland.
- 3 III. ASA⁶, bp. in Falmouth as were the two elder brothers at the same time, Oct. 18, 1767; m. 1st, Phebe Sawyer; 2d, Mrs. Fanny Abbot.

- IV. NATHANIEL⁶, b. in Hampton in 1757; m. Dec. 19, 1784, Polly Thomas, who died Dec. 6, 1830. He with his brother Josiah, succeeded their father in the harness-making business, and both served in the Revolutionary Army, Nathaniel receiving a pension. He died Aug. 16, 1831. Children born in Portland were—
1. *Sally*⁷, bp. June 3, 1785; d. in Boston, unmarried, Jan. 22, 1849.
 2. *Nathaniel*⁷, bp. Feb. 18, 1787; m. July 29, 1813, Nancy Marsh who died Dec. 6, 1830; m. 2d, Eliza Haskell Maxfield. He died Mar. 12, 1869.
 3. *Dorcas*⁷, bp.—; m. in 1810 to Capt. John Remick.
 4. *Eunice*⁷, b. about 1791; m. Capt. John Leavett.

Query—Was there not a son of Caleb⁵ by the name of William who did a large business in Gorham, Me., as trader in lumber, shingles, hay &c., selling flour and groceries to the farmers and others in that vicinity sometime subsequent to 1797, but who afterwards sold to Boston merchants the property and trade, which in 1802, was again sold to Joshua or Joseph Shaw? As the name often occurs in later generations of this branch of Shaws, there seems to be good grounds for such a supposition.

2. JOSIAH⁶ SHAW, b. at Hampton, N. H., in 1751; m., Sept. 7, 1773, Rebecca, daughter of Capt. Joseph and Mary (Bailey) Cox. He was a harness-maker, and in partnership with his younger brother, Nathaniel, continued in the business built up by their father in the early days of Portland. He was also a soldier of the Revolution, and the following record was sent to the compiler by a great grandson, James Birney Shaw of Indiana:

"The name of Josiah Shaw appears on the billeting roll of Capt. David Bradish's Co. from May 12, 1775, to the date of marching to headquarters, July 8, 1775, and again with the rank of private on the return of Col. Phinney's Regt., Capt. Bradish's Co., on furlough, in the fall of 1775; residence given Falmouth, now Portland, Me. His name next appears with other signatures to an order for bounty cost or its equivalent in money, due for the eight months' service in 1775, in the same company and regiment, dated at Cambridge, Oct. 28, 1775, Fort No. 2, payable to Henry Sewell, Orderly Sergeant; and again with the rank of private on Muster and Pay Roll of Capt. Wm. Crocker's Co., Col. Mitchell's Regt., stationed at Falmouth, Cumberland County; length of service, from Mar. 1, 1776 to Nov. 23, 1776. In the Roll dated Falmouth, July 31, 1777, on the return of Capt. Abner Lowell's Co. to that station, the name of Josiah Shaw appears as 3d Corporal—said company reported Aug. 11, 1777, as mustered by Col. Noyes, agreeable to sea coast establishment. His name next appears with rank of private on Muster and Pay Roll of Capt. Peter Warren's Co., Col. Jonathan Mitchell's Regt.; enlisted July 7, 1779, discharged Sept. 25, 1779. This was the 'Penobscot Expedition.' Roll dated at Falmouth."

These records bear the certificate of the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts given at his office in Boston, Apr. 21, 1897, that the foregoing are true abstracts from the Record Index to the Revolutionary War Archives deposited in that office with signature, "Wm. M. Olin, Sec."

In 1829, they moved to Greenville near Moosehead Lake, and later moved to Readfield, Me., where he died May 16, 1868, in the 90th year of his age. His wife, Bethiah, died in Readfield, Nov. 10, 1878, over 93 years old. Mr. Shaw was a man universally respected for his integrity and eminent christian character, and a prominent member of the F. W. Baptist church. He had one *child by his first wife, and eight others by the last, all of whose names follow:

10 I. GEORGE^s KING, b. in Paris, Me., June 1, 1805; m. Emily P. Clark.

Eight children were born to this couple, while living in Greenville, Me., whose names follow:

* There is a tradition that after the death of his mother, when about a year old, this child was carried by his grandmother, on horseback from Gorham to Paris, (a distance of fifty miles) in a single day, and that at a time when the roads in some of the intervening localities were little better than a rough footpath.

During the Civil war he was for a time, employed in the office of the Secretary of War, Edwin M. Stanton, and was in the Convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln for the presidency. 10. GEORGE⁸ KING SHAW, (Rev.) was born in Paris, Me., June 1, 1805; graduated from what was then Gorham Academy and at eighteen years of age began to teach in the public schools of Cumberland and York counties, pursuing at the same time his theological studies and preaching whenever opportunities presented themselves requiring his services. In 1838, he was ordained to the work of the Christian ministry and assumed the pastorate of the Universalist Society in Dixfield, Me., where he successfully labored as pastor and preacher for eight years. On Dec. 23, 1839,

Mr. Shaw was married to Miss Emily Poor Clark, daughter of Thomas Clark, Clerk of the Court at Paris, by Rev. George Bates of Turner, Me. He subsequently accepted the office of Register of Probate for Oxford County, and removed with his family to Paris Hill, in 1846, for the purpose of being near his work. In addition to the faithful performance of his official duties, he still continued to preach, and was often called upon to officiate at funerals, where his naturally sympathetic nature ministered to the comfort as well as the edification of his hearers. Of his abilities as a sermonizer, ex-Governor Perham used to speak in the highest terms. He was much interested in the causes of education and temperance and lectured on both of these subjects. It was in Paris that he began his editorial labors on the Religious Instructor, a monthly published in Portland; was also a contributor to other Universalist publications of that period. In 1855, he removed to Washington, D. C., where he held positions in The Interior and Post Office Departments, at the same time utilizing his editorial pen in one form or another. Although politically he had decided views of his own, neither his politics or public labors were allowed to interfere with his friendships or his religious duties, and his devotion to the church of his choice and belief in its tenets were a marked characteristic of the man's stability of mind, while his acquaintance with many prominent men in this and foreign countries, conspired to give him broader views and more liberal opinions. In July, 1869, Mr. Shaw removed to Biddeford, Me., and assumed the editorial management of The Maine Democrat, published in that city, but when it was merged in The State Democrat and printed in Saco, he retired from the position, although a contributor to the latter until his last severe illness from which he was ushered into a diviner life, Jan. 6, 1881, at the ripe age of more than 76 years. His widow, Emily P. Shaw, died in Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 10, 1892, 80 years of age.

(Edward^A, Edward^B, Benjamin², Roger¹.)

REV. JEREMIAH⁵ SHAW, b. in Hampton, July 26th, 1747; graduated from Harvard College in 1767. Early in life he felt a call to preach, and acceptably served as pastor for short periods, in Gosport, New Castle, Rye, Exeter, Salisbury and other towns not far from the Maine and New Hampshire coasts. In 1779, he was ordained and settled over the Congregational church in Moultonborough, N. H., where he received a donation of land and a large and commodious parsonage according to the custom of the times. He remained here as pastor for fifty-five years, having for the last five years an assistant, being too infirm to attend to all the requisites of a church who in their turn refused to listen to his offers of resignation. In his farewell discourse at the close of this pastorate, he spoke of having seen six generations of his family, commencing with his grandfather and ending with his great-grandchildren. Though not coveting a reputation as controversialist, he was induced about the time of the rise of Universalism to engage in a public discussion on that subject with Rev. Hosea Ballou, one of the pioneers in that denomination, acquitting himself with credit, and to the perfect satisfaction of his parishioners and other listeners sharing his own religious opinions. He died Oct. 20, 1834, honored and beloved by the whole community, and his memory is still held in great reverence by his numerous descendants. "Parson Shaw" as he was called, married Hannah, daughter of Capt. John Moulton of Hampton. She died Mar. 26, 1827. They had seven children, namely :

1. ABIGAIL⁶, b. in Hampton, July 10, 1774; m. Nathaniel Milliken and resided in Salem, Mass., where they both died leaving two children, Sarah and Mary, who died a little past middle age, unmarried.

He settled in Moultonborough as a farmer, harness-maker and storekeeper. It is said he rode in the first chaise ever seen in that town, which caused not a little excitement in the minds of the rural population who witnessed the occurrence. In a neighborhood where the highway could be seen for over a mile, Squire Shaw was seen approaching in the new and strange looking vehicle which in the distance not being distinguishable from the horse, resembled in its steady locomotion, some huge bird, and was at once pronounced by the excited spectators to be an immense ostrich or eagle in search of prey. Hastily calling in their little ones, the anxious mothers watched the advancement of this strange creature, nor were they convinced of its harmlessness, until seen close at hand, and they had an explanation from the jolly "squire". Mr. Shaw belonged to the State troops during the War of 1812, but was not in active service. He died in Moultonborough, Dec. 6, 1855. Children, all but last by first wife, were—

Mr. Shaw was an enthusiastic member of the State Militia of which he was at one time, captain. Mrs. Shaw died Dec. 6, 1897, at the age of 94 years, of whom a local paper says: "Mrs. Emma F. Shaw, whose death we chronicle to-day, was a remarkably well preserved old lady. She remembered with distinctness the War of 1812 and many of the incidents connected with it—kept well informed on the current topics of the times by reading from the newspapers, (often without glasses,) and by daily discussions with those about her. Being a bright and ready conversationalist, her friends, up to her last illness, found much pleasure in her company. JONATHAN SHAW.

JONATHAN SHAW whose descendants are in uncertainty as to his ancestry, was born about 1750, and died in Claremont, N. H. The family traditions which have been substantiated by letters written by his grandson many years ago to the genealogist, Thomas Shaw of Sebago Lake, Me., give good grounds for the opinion that he came originally from Hampton, N. H. ; but it is with the utmost difficulty that the families of the 4th and 5th generations who emigrated to localities more remote from the seaboard and but sparsely inhabited, (in many cases not incorporated as towns,) can be traced—the public records of those times often failing to be of any assistance in the work. Consequently the necessary dates could not be ascertained wherewith to connect this family with the line of Shaws who at a very early period of that town's history began to be scattered throughout New England and some of her contiguous States. That the records of Jonathan Shaw were not preserved by his father's family may be accounted for by the fact that in those days of Puritanic severity, many a son was disowned and his name stricken from the records kept in the family Bible, while he was compelled to leave the homestead in disgrace and seek a living elsewhere, on account of some act of disobedience to parental authority—such as marrying in opposition to their expressed wishes—a difference of opinion in politics &c., &c. Jonathan who probably came in the 5th generation was known to have had four sons, no daughters mentioned. The names of the sons were—

- 2 I. ROYAL⁶, b. in Claremont, N. H., about 1772; m. Sabrina Richardson.

- VII. BENJAMIN^s R., b. Oct. 4, 1827 ; being of a studious turn of mind and bent on obtaining an education, he overlooked his eyesight to such an extent that he finally became totally blind ; but unwilling to give up the contest and spend his time in idleness, he commenced to teach vocal music, (in the study of which he had already become proficient,) and which he followed as a vocation for over thirty years. Meantime he had been developing a talent for writing, especially in verse, and in 1877, his "Songs in the Night" were published which have received the most complimentary notice from critics—being written in an easy, graceful style, evincing originality of ideas and fine conceptions of the subjects treated. In 1848, Mr. Shaw removed to Canaan, Ohio, where, on Dec. 17, 1855, he was married to Miss Juliana Aurilla Hoisington, sister to the wife of his brother Dennis, and whose mother was a cousin to the noted sculptor, Hiram Powers. JOHN SHAW.

1. JOHN³ SHAW, who died in Holderness, N. H., at the age of one hundred and three years, is said to have come from England to New Hampshire early in the seventeen hundreds and settled in that part of Durham which was incorporated Jan. 6, 1766, as the town of Lee. In spite of this tradition, however, after a long and fruitless search for particulars regarding the fate of one John, the son of Benjamin Shaw, (the youngest son of Roger Shaw, immigrant from England prior to 1636,) who was remembered in his father's will made in 1717, but never afterward traced with any certainty by genealogists, it is believed that the latter may yet be identified as the John first mentioned above, having moved from Hampton, N. H. where Roger and his son Benjamin settled and raised up families, with others to localities heretofore unsettled and farther removed from the seacoast and civilization. The date of this son's birth must have been between 1680 and 1690, consequently the compiler has placed the name of the subject of this record in the same generation as that of the grandson of Roger which is the third from the immigrant. The public records which at that time were but imperfectly kept, and during the vicissitudes of war, fire and famine often wholly destroyed, fail to throw any light on the history of this son of Benjamin subsequent to the date of the will of the latter, which led to the belief that this son may have gone back to England, (the native place of his grandfather,) after disposing of the paternal estates falling to him at the death of his father, and on returning to America concluded to seek new territory whereon to battle with the Indians and the wilderness. Or it may have been a son of the same name who came over with two brothers (as has been asserted), who settled in Genesee township, N. Y. Such being the case, we should start with the 4th generation instead of the 3d. However it may prove in regard to the various opinions expressed, John Shaw of Lee, N. H., was a man of sterling qualities morally, and the most vigorous constitution physically—never having been sick a day in his life, passing away suddenly and painlessly at the close of a day's labor at chopping wood. When in his one hundredth year, he made a profession of religion and was baptized, being then in the full possession of all his mental and physical faculties. His wife's name was Mercy Vernet; and although little has been ascertained concerning the family of this couple, they were known to have had four sons, namely:

- I. JOHN^d, b. in Lee, N. H.
- II. SAMUEL^d, b. in Lee.
- 2 III. DANIEL^d, b. in Lee; m. Elizabeth Staples.

7. JOHN⁵ SHAW, b. in New Durham, N. H., Aug. 11, 1795; m. Frances A., daughter of Dr. Benjamin and Mary (Riley) French and settled in Exeter, Me., where he built the first store in town and engaged in trade. He was a man of marked intelligence and literary skill—contributing to the current literature of those times on political, reformatory, and other topics. Emphasizing the opinions and principles he advocated in theory by practice, he was seen one morning rolling out certain casks, (hitherto considered by every storekeeper of that period a necessary part of their stock in trade,) and emptying their contents into the gutter. This was sufficient to render him unpopular, diminish his income and, with the dishonesty of his business associate, bring about the financial reverses which prompted the family to emigrate westward in 1852, hoping for better opportunities by which to retrieve their fortunes and educate the sons according to the original plan of the parents. Mr. Shaw, preceding his family, selected for his occupancy, a spot near Winona, Minn., and here set out the first apple orchard ever grown in the State. But while yet in the prime of life, and before his hopes had become a realization, he was suddenly stricken with disease and died in 1853, before he was rejoined by his family. Previous to misfortunes in business, Mr. Shaw was a generous benefactor of the churches and rendered financial aid to every organization of a reformatory nature, as well as to the deserving poor. In this connection it may be said that the financial ruin which overtook him did not extend to his creditors, for the personal property of the family was all sacrificed, and the indebtedness paid, dollar for dollar. As stated by a prominent clergyman of the State in which he died, some years afterward, "His bravery in taking a stand against intemperance and all prevailing vices coming under his notice, placed him fifty years ahead of his time." Mrs. Frances Shaw died in 1876, with her family who had settled in Minneapolis, Minn. The children of this couple were—

- I. EMILY⁶ F., b. in Exeter, ———, 1826; d. ———, 1885.

MARIAN⁶, b. ———, 1845; finished her education at a normal school, receiving also private instruction; became an accomplished linguist—being proficient in the French, German and Latin languages, (excelling in the latter,) and for years held a position in the Central High School of Minneapolis, winning her way by promotion to the principalship of the highest class (A) and succeeding one of the ablest male teachers ever connected with the schools of the city. She had filled this position over four years, at the time of her death, and had under her supervision, the large senior class, to whom she taught Latin and German. Her series of "Special Lessons in Virgil and Cicero's Latin Prose" were prepared for her own school work, but they were found so valuable that they were published by the "Board" for the use of other schools of that grade in the city, and have been in use elsewhere. This work was done in time of vacation at the expense of much needed rest, from pure love of her work as teacher, as she neither asked nor received compensation for it. Miss Shaw had also employed some of her time and talent in writing for the press. Her story entitled "Queen Bess", published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London, received many commendations from critics throughout the United States, from which we quote the following: "A bright and lively story, brim full of entertainment." [Boston Globe.] "One of the most charming stories of the times,—thoroughly captivating to young and old." [Chicago Interior.] "The narrative is lively and natural—its tone fresh, wholesome and entertaining." [San Francisco Bulletin.] "Simple, straightforward and helpful." [Rev. J. H. Vincent.] When the news of Miss Shaw's death (which resulted from a severe illness of a few hours) was announced to the school where she had attended to her accustomed duties only the day before, it was immediately adjourned for the day, "out of respect (as then stated) for the foremost high school teacher of the city, both as to position occupied and length and quality of service." Her name was a synonym for all that is exalted in character and lovable in disposition.

"With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
She has wandered away to an unknown land;
And left friends to dream how very fair
It must need be since she lingers there."

8. DANIEL⁵ SHAW, b. in New Durham,—1800; m. Betsey Cole of Athens, Me., and lived in Dexter, afterward in Skowhegan, Me. Like his father, he was a musician of considerable native talent—his fine voice affording delight in social circles wherever heard. Mr. Shaw spent his last days in Dexter where he died July 8, 1859; his wife in May 1865. They had five children, all born in Skowhegan, whose names follow:

9. ANDREW⁵ SHAW, b. in New Durham, Sept. 12, 1802; m. Sept. 13, 1829, Amanda, daughter of Josiah and Nancy (Pease) Barker. When but ten years old he came to Exeter, Me., with his parents, and on coming of age engaged in trade. But after some years he returned to the homestead to care for his aged parents and remained there through life. Capt. Shaw, as he was then called, was a man of much prominence in official circles—having been chairman of the Board of Selectmen in Exeter for twelve years; trustee and steward of the M. E. church in that town; and May 20, 1826, was commissioned by Gov. Albin K. Parris, Ensign of a Company of Infantry, 3d Regt. 1st Brigade, 3d Division of State Militia. On Apr. 15, 1829, he was promoted to the office of Lieutenant of the same Company—being commissioned by Gov. Enoch Lincoln and signed by Secretary of the State, Edward Russell. In 1832, he was commissioned by Gov. Samuel E. Smith, Captain of same Company but soon after resigned. The papers relating to this military service which were signed by the Commander-in-Chief and I. Sewell, Adjt. General, are now in the possession of his daughter, Mrs. Sybilla B. Jose of Dexter, Me. Capt. Shaw died on the homestead in Exeter, July 19, 1881. The children of this couple were—

- I. ANDREW⁶ G., b. in Exeter as were all the others; lived in Pittsfield, Me.; unmarried.

- IV. HENRY⁶ P., b. Sept. 10, 1835.
- V. ALBERTINA⁶ G., b. Feb. 20, 1838; m. June 15, 1861, J. D. Garland of Garland, Me., and had one child. Died May 11, 1872.
- VI. SYBILLA⁶ BROWNING, b. Dec. 5, 1842; m. Sept. 9, 1866, L. W. Jose of Dexter, Me., where they reside; one son, name not given. Mrs. Jose has taken a deep interest in this work and furnished the records of her father's family as well as those of more distant kinship.
- VII. GEORGE⁶ S., b. Mar. 15, 1846; died Oct. 29, 1884.
- VIII. ELLA⁶ FRANCES, b. Oct. 9, 1852; m. 1st, Apr. 30, 1873, J. D. Garland, the husband of her sister Albertina who died in 1872; had one child; Mrs. Garland m. 2d, Mar. 4, 1884, F. H. Bassett of Lowell, Mass., where she died Oct. 1, 1887.

10. DANIEL⁶ SHAW, b. in Industry, Me., Mar. 30, 1813; m. Miss Ann F. Hutchins of that town, where they lived for some years on the homestead, but later moved to Western New York, where he did a considerable business in lumbering, and where their children were born. In 1856, Mr. Shaw with his family removed to Eau Claire, Wis., where he continued in the lumber business and was the founder of the Shaw Lumber Co., operating very extensively in all that region in both milling and lumbering, up to the time of his death in 1881. Mr. and Mrs. Shaw had three children the complete records of whom could not be obtained, although letters and circulars calling for information have been repeatedly sent to the family. The children's names (probably in the following order) were—

- I. CHARLES⁷, b. in Alma, N. Y.; d. at the age of seventeen years.
- II. EUGENE⁷, b. in Alma; m. Lettie Kennedy of Minneapolis, Minn., and resides in Eau Claire, where he continues the business started by his father, on a profitable and enlarged scale.
- III. GEORGE⁷ B., b. in Alma, Allegany Co., N. Y., Mar. 12, 1854; became a member and officer in the Shaw Lumber Co., while yet a young man, and at the same time had acquired some proficiency in scientific study and was a practical electrician. In 1887, after serving as Alderman of Eau Claire for eleven years, he was elected Mayor of the city for a term of two years. Under his administration the city made rapid strides in efficiency in the line of fire, police, industrial and all other departments under the municipal supervision. In the year 1892, he was chosen Grand Supreme Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias for the World, and has ever been one of the foremost workers of the order. In the same year, (1892), Mr. Shaw was elected by the Republican party Representative to Congress amid the greatest enthusiasm, and so great was his popularity, that he was given a perfect ovation—nearly every man, woman, and child wearing Shaw badges. In 1894, he was renominated for the same office with the same flattering results, though at the time the convention was held, he was unable to leave Washington on account of a severe illness which proved fatal, (although not so considered by his friends in Eau Claire), and on Monday, Aug. 27, 1894, he passed quietly away, leaving a wife, two children, and an aged mother to whom he was very devotedly attached. Such was his popularity at this time that flags about the city of Eau Claire were unfurled at half mast, and not only the mills of the Shaw Lumber Company, but those of other companies closed for the day, and telegrams of condolence from Washington and all other places wherever he was known, came by scores to the afflicted relatives. On the day of the funeral, (Thursday), the lowered flags, drapings of public buildings, and suspension of nearly all kinds of business, attested to the respect in which he was held as well as to the genuine sorrow of the whole city. The magnificence of the floral decorations in the home where the services were held, were magnificent beyond description, and were all voluntary offerings from Washington, the numerous lodges of the order of Knights of Pythias, business organizations, and personal relatives and associates. Large delegations from both Houses of Congress were in attendance, as were also the highest officials of the order of Knights of Pythias who took charge of the obsequies. The funeral procession, composed of hundreds of superior officers of the Knights of Pythias, the delegation from Washington, Mayor of the city and his Council, prominent citizens and business men, with their operatives, seemed interminable from its great length, and was in charge of a marshal, and closely guarded by a special police from the house to the grave, where they enclosed and guarded the spot during the performance of the last sad rites of the order. Though taken away in the flower of his manhood with the most flattering prospects of future usefulness and honors, it may be said of him "That life was long, for he lived in deeds, not years."

(Daniel⁵, Daniel⁴, John³.)

11. MILTON⁶ G. SHAW, b. in Industry, Me., Dec. 31, 1820; lived on the farm with his father and older brothers until he was twenty-five years old, then went to Greenville, Me., and engaged in farming and lumbering, continuing in the latter until he became one of the most extensive operators and dealers of this kind of merchandise in the State. He was also interested in steamboat navigation on Moosehead Lake, investing largely in this line of business, and owned and operated hotels and stores. In 1894, Mr. Shaw moved to Bath, Me., having previously formed a partnership with his three oldest sons, under the firm name of M. G. Shaw & Sons, a company which to an unusual degree represents skillful management, honesty and fair dealing and almost unparalled success. Mr. Shaw married June 6, 1847, Eunice S., daughter of Josiah and Nancy (Williams) Hinckley and resided in Greenville nearly fifty years; died Dec. 18, 1903. They had nine children, namely:

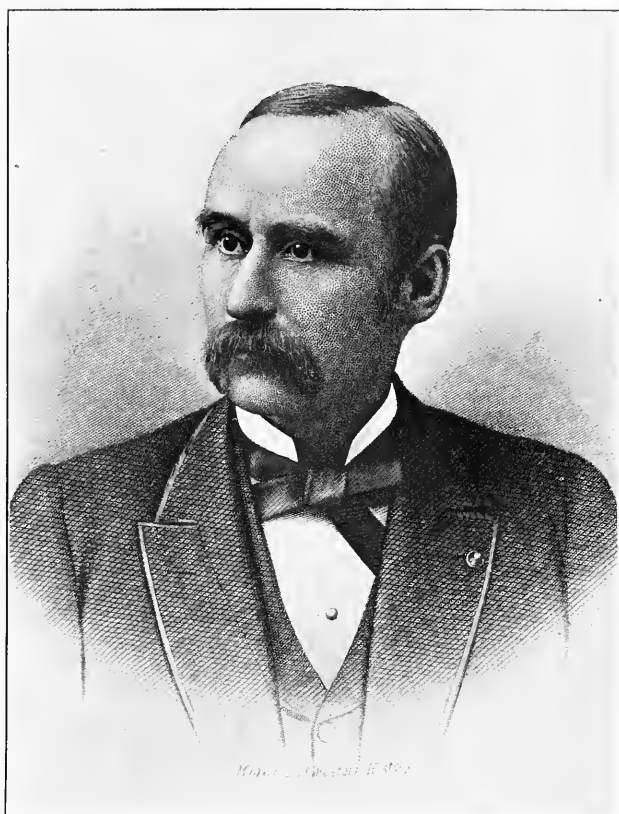

- I. MILTON⁷, b. in Greenville, May 27, 1849; m. Sept. 19, 1875, M. Ella Mitchell and had one child; died Mar. 4, 1880.
- II. ELLEN⁷, b. in Greenville, Feb. 1, 1851; d. Apr. 20, 1863.
- III. CHARLES⁷ D., b. in Greenville, Apr. 5, 1852; m. Oct. 25, 1875, Clara F. Norcross and has one child.
- IV. FRANK⁷, } d. May 16, 1867.
- V. FRED⁷, } twins, b. June 27, 1855; d. Jan. 27, 1856.
- VI. ALBERT⁷ H., b. in Greenville, Apr. 21, 1857; m. Aug. 19, 1879, Martha Mansell and resides in Bath. He is engaged in lumbering and mercantile business with his father; has one child.
- VII. WILLIAM⁷ M., b. in Greenville, Mar. 3, 1861; m. Oct. 24, 1885, Ida J. Mansell and is also a member of the firm, M. G. Shaw & Sons. One child.

VIII. GEORGE⁷ M., b. Feb. 20, 1863; d. the following August.

IX. MARY⁷ EMMA, b. in Greenville, Sept. 6, 1865; m. Oct. 19, 1892, Frederic H. Kimball; resides in Bath.

12. JOHN⁶ M. SHAW, b. in Exeter, Dec. 18, 1833; after the death of his father in 1853, he assumed the care and guardianship of the entire family, living at Galena, Ill., where after cheerfully abandoning his plan of a collegiate course he took up the study of the law and in one year afterward was admitted to the bar. After ten years' residence in Galena he removed to Plattsville, Wis., where he formed a partnership with John G. Scott, and though the prospects of the new firm seemed promising to an unusual degree, at the time of the Rebellion, (although exempt from service) he and his partner feeling that their place was among the defenders of the Union, set about raising a Company for the Army which became Co. 3, of the 25th Wis. Vols. of Infantry—Mr. Scott as Captain and Mr. Shaw, 2d Lieutenant. On the death of Capt. Scott, Lieut. Shaw was made Captain of the Company and took part in all the Atlanta campaign under Sherman in his famous "March to the Sea." Previous to this Mr. Shaw had served as Judge-Advocate at the general court martial at Columbus, Ky., and in April 1865, he was again detailed as acting Provost-Marshal and Judge-Advocate of the First Division, remaining in this service until the close of the war. While at home on a furlough in 1864, Capt. Shaw married Miss Ellen A. Eliot, a former schoolmate, and after the war, settled in Minneapolis, Minn. In 1881, after two successive partnerships in both of which Mr. Shaw was the recognized head, a position on the Supreme Bench was offered him but for various reasons this honor which to most lawyers prove the zenith of their ambition, was declined. A year later, however, a vacancy occurring on the District Bench of Hennepin County, he reluctantly accepted the position, hoping that the relief from general practice would bring about a restoration of health then seriously impaired by unintermittant work as attorney. This position not proving as agreeable as the more active practice he had enjoyed at the bar, he resigned in 1883, and health being restored, resumed the former profession, and to use the expression of a biographer, "became not only the ablest but the best loved attorney of Hennepin County." He was a member of the Loyal Legion and the G. A. R., and was to the last, a prominent figure at their gatherings. As a Son of the Revolution also, he loved to join in their commemorative exercises. Judge Shaw's death which was sudden and came from heart failure, occurred at his home in Minneapolis, Dec. 6, 1897. The widow and three children survive him, the son, John Eliot, being a graduate of Yale, and now in practice as a lawyer. Names and dates of births of others not given.

(John⁵, George⁴, John³.)

13. GEORGE⁶ K. SHAW, b. in Exeter, Me., June 23, 1842; was trained for a journalistic career, and at the age of twenty years had a weekly newspaper printed under his supervision. At twenty-one years of age, he enlisted and served through the last year of the Civil war; was mustered out when twenty-two, as Major of the 42d Wis. Regt.; resumed work soon after as a journalist, and at St. Paul, Minneapolis, and other places, has by pioneer work in this line, won the name of "Newspaper Builder of the Northwest." He is now, and has been for many years, editor of the Minneapolis Tribune, and contributed much towards the prosperity and literary merits of that enterprising paper. Maj.

Shaw married, Sept. 13, 1871, Anna Eliza, daughter of George C. Jones of New York city, and they have had four children, namely:

- I. MELVILLE⁷ JONES, b. in Minneapolis, Aug. 6, 1872 ; graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, in 1896; was with the marine force and among the first to land at Cuba on the breaking out of the Spanish-American war, where he rendered efficient service ; has also served with credit in the Philippines and in China, and is still in service as Captain, if we mistake not, at Panama.
- II. GEORGE⁷ K., JR., b. in Bay City, Mich., Aug. 24, 1874 ; is now a practicing lawyer.
- III. MAUDE⁷ CLAIRE, b. in Bay City, Aug. 25, 1876 ; m. Chas. Louis Grant of Philadelphia.
- IV. BENJAMIN⁷, b. Nov. 18, 1878 ; d. Feb. 10, 1882.

POEMS.

Prayer.

Written Feb. 19, 1797, by THOMAS SHAW, Standish, Me.

Eternal God, wilt Thou behold
This troubled sinful land?
For men in sin are waxing bold—
We need Thy helping hand.

By nature we are prone to sin,
By nature, go astray :—
By nature man has ever been Subject to Satan's sway.

Against our Saviour and our God,
How often we rebel!
Although the chastening of his rod,
Oft turns our steps from hell.

Almighty Father, stop we pray,
This awful tide of sin!
Help us to choose the better way,
And Heaven at last, to win!

All power is in Thee alone,
To save or to destroy :—
We plead, O God, before Thy throne
That we, our powers employ

In serving Thee, and Thee alone,
According to Thy word—
Believing on Thine own dear Son,
And own Him, Sovereign, Lord.

O Thou eternal One on high,
Save us by Thy great might!
And on our hearts before we die,
Shed everlasting light!

O let its rays illumine the way!
Thine arm be our support!
Till we behold the heavenly day,
And gain the heavenly port.

Christ, the Corner Stone.

Behold in Zion, God doth lay
 A sure foundation, e'er to stay:—
 Jesus, the Lord, He is the stone,
 All men should build their hopes upon;—

The corner stone, here and above,
 Wherein should centre all our love:
 For when through Him, to God we flee,
 From all our sins, we are set free.

In Jesus, we may ever rest
 With quietude in every breast—
 With joy to follow in the way
 That leads to Heaven's eternal day.

O that all men would seek to know
 This corner stone while here below:—
 Here learn the source of truth and grace,
 And run with joy the Christian race.

May God by His own power and love,
 Send down His spirit from above:—
 And may it be a constant guest,
 Within each penitential breast!

Preserve us safe from worldly sin!
 Help us eternal life to win,
 Free from all trouble, free from care
 To praise Thy name forever there!

Lord grant that this may be my case,
 And Heaven be my last resting place;
 That when I quit this house of clay,
 With saints forever, I may stay.

Thomas Shaw.

Standish, Me., May 12, 1799.

God and Nature.

All nature is Thy temple,
 All space is Thine abode;
 And ever here with mortal man,
 Thou art a loving God.

Thou knowest every thought,
 And seest all, as one;
 And of our words and actions, nought
 Escapes Thy sight when done.

For always, in Thy might,
 Wherever we may be,
 Thou dost survey us day and night :—
 We cannot from Thee, flee.

And since O God, Thou art in all,
 O may we feel the same;
 Always aloud unto Thee call,
 And always praise Thy name.

Bring us, Almighty God, to know
 And see Thou art all-wise;
 Adore and serve Thee here below,
 With hearts, and hands, and eyes.

And ever while we live on earth,
 As when we live above;
 Help us, O God, Thy will to do,
 And feel Thy pardoning love !

So shall we know Thee as Thou art,
 And never from Thee roam :—
 Secure on earth "that better part,"
 And gain a heavenly home.

THOMAS SHAW.

Sabbath morning, Nov. 15th, 1802.

Saturday Night.

Time has the week nearly outrun
 And all our worldly work is done:—
 Soon we may rest upon our bed,
 From worldly things and worldly care;
 Thus for the Sabbath now prepare,
 And in the Spirit now be led.

Blest be the Lord, our only guide,
 Present at all times by our side!
 And now the day has nearly fled,
 O, who doth know but that this night,
 E'er the next dawn of morning light
 We may be numbered with the dead?

God pardon all that's wrong and past,
 While time with us has fled so fast:
 And all the wickedness we've done
 Through all the week, through all our days!
 Then will we render grateful praise
 To God, and his beloved Son.

THOMAS SHAW, Standish, Me.

The Sabbath.

In six days God did all things make,
 That He thought for the best:
 And on the seventh did betake
 Himself to holy rest.

This was the day that Christ arose
 From the dark mouldering tomb.—
 Behold Him as alive He goes,
 Free from death's awful doom!

Henceforth the saints called this the first
 Day of the coming week;
 And did assemble in God's house,
 His blessing there to seek.

O may our God His presence show
 Within each consecrated place!
 And may our hearts ever o'erflow
 With His rich saving grace!

Give unto us, O God above,
 Upon this holy day,
 The smiles and favors of Thy love,
 On what we do and say!

And then through life what'er betide,
 We'll ever faithful stand,
 With Thy good spirit for our guide
 E'en to the Sabbath land.

Thoughts on Creation.

Come O my soul, and take a view
 Of the creation all around.—
 See what a powerful God can do,
 Both in the heavens, and on the ground.
 Here everything above the sod,
 Proclaims its maker to be God.

This God, all-powerful and wise,
 Created worlds beyond our sight,
 Which never with our natural eyes,
 May we describe or see aright.
 For through the boundless space above,
 Thousands of worlds existence have.

The stars that we behold at night,
 Whose number never can be told,
 May all be suns, and shed their light
 On many another darksome world,
 Where all are placed at God's command,
 And kept by His Almighty hand.

Thy works, O Lord, in nature found,
 Proclaim a maker wise and good :—
 Thy love for all things doth abound,
 On this terrestrial abode.
 But we can never understand
How they were made at Thy command.

And so we will contented be
 Among the objects of Thy care;
 Though all Thy worlds we never see,
 By faith, we can Thy blessings share
 With every subject of Thy love,
 Both here, and in the worlds above.

Note by the Compiler.

This production written at the commencement of the past century, shows a mind whose thoughts and speculations led him to form opinions far in advance of the majority in his day, when the sciences of astronomy and geology were but imperfectly understood by any excepting students who made these studies a specialty; and even then, astronomic science was in its infancy as it were, and received little thought or credence from the people in general.

In Old Age.

Soon I shall pass the boundless sea,
 And launch into eternity :—
 Of worldly things and friends take leave,
 Then lay my body in the grave.

Come then my soul and meditate
 On what may be my future state,
 When I depart this earthly life,
 To be forever, free from strife.

Prepare while yet on earth you stay
 For life throughout eternity ;
 That when thy mortal race is run,
 A heavenly life will be begun.

God grant that there at His right hand,
 With the anointed, chosen band,
 I find a safe abiding place—
 Saved by repentance and His grace.

Infirmities of age no more,
 Will be my lot on that blest shore;
 But free from sorrow and from pain,
 I shall my youthfulness, regain.

There I shall find both peace and rest,
 In the fair regions of the blest :—
 There praise the Father and the Son,
 When my last labor here is done.

The Cherry Grove.

One spot near the dear old homestead
 Where childhood and youth were passed,
 I often behold by Fancy led—
 A picture too bright to last.

Tall, stately trees in the springtime,
 With their graceful boughs abloom,
 Supporting the merriest songsters—
 Sweet antidotes of gloom.

How cool and refreshing their shadows,
 'Neath the blaze of the noonday sun :
 And O, how I loved in the twilight,
 Here to linger, when work was done!

Was ever a breath of fragrance
 So rich as their blossoms shed ?
 Was ever the fruit of Autumn
 So sweet, so juicy and red ?

Here the nightingale's songs at evening,
 Both soothed and delighted the ear;
 And the whip-poor-will's call often echoed
 From its shadows without a fear.

But those happy days of my childhood
 Have long since passed away;
 And the dear old home that sheltered
 The loved ones for many a day,

No longer stands on the hillside,
 In its sombre dress of gray;
 For with the grove of cherry trees
 And my youth, it has passed away.

The Lover's Quarrel.

Although my heart has many faults,
 Look not so cold on me;
 For it has still one sunny spot—
 Its constant love for thee.

Think of the many happy hours
 We have together spent;
 And ponder not on the idle words,
 Of which I now repent.

'Tis true, the tempter gained my heart
 By his delusive snare;
 But do not thus abandon me
 To a dark and wild despair.

And O, I pray, let not my love
 From its repose, be driven;
 But place thy hand in mine and say,
 "Dear one, thou art forgiven."

RESPONSE.

I own my heart was growing cold,
 Still, it was true to thee;
 And though my eyes the secret told,
 I sought not to be free

From the vows exchanged, from the bonds of love,
 Which will surely last for aye:—
 They were rays of light from Heaven above,
 Which will shine for me alway.

You own your heart has many faults—
 The same is true of mine;
 Which also has one sunny spot—
 A love as true as thine.

Then let the past deep buried lie!
 Let not estrangement come
 To hearts thus bound by a sacred tie,
 Whose resting place is home!

Songs in the Night.

Songs in the night!—they are stealing
 O'er us with faith-giving power:
 Voices of love are revealing
 God in the gloomiest hour.
 Paradise opens her portals
 When the last day-beam expires—
 Music, then, made by immortals,
 Flows from celestial lyres.—

Sounds of euphonious numbers,
 Ringing with rhythm and rhyme,
 Come to us oft in our slumbers,
 Bringing a charm in their chime:
 And when our slumbers are broken,
 Darkness is dearer than light,
 Since the Inspirer hath spoken,
 "God giveth us songs in the night."

Nature and Heaven uniting,
 Sing to the silent and sad;—
 Wooing and warmly inviting
 All to rejoice and be glad!
 Join the sweet chorus, O daughters
 Of music, and emulate these!
 Join with the winds and the waters,—
 Join with the birds and the bees!

Take from your temple of treasures,
 Teeming with beautiful things,
 Melting, melliferous measures
 Such as the nightingale sings!
 Ye who have glad hearts and voices,
 Full of affection and song,
 Sing, till the saddest rejoices—
 Sing, till the weakest is strong!

Sing to the sleepless and sighing,
 Songs such as seraphs have sung;
 Drive away doubts from the dying—
 Keep away cares from the young!
 Songs in the night ever sounding,
 Still let your harmonies roll—
 Symphonies sacred surrounding
 With solace and cheer, the sad soul!

Floweret and forest and fountain—
 All, have song voices for me.
 Melodies melt o'er the mountain—
 Music floats up from the sea.
 Music, the sweet stars are sending
 Down from their archway of light;
 Air, earth and ocean are blending
 'Neath the pavilion of night.

Angels to woo and to win me—
 Sent from the sweet choirs above,
 Down to the spirit within me,
 Sing of the Fountain of Love!

O let my heart ever praise Him—
 Author of life, love and light!
 Paens of gratitude to Him,
Who giveth us songs in the night!

BENJ. ROYAL SHAW,

The author of the above as well as a few succeeding poems, became blind many years ago. Seeking to beguile the dark hours, he began to indulge his natural fondness for writing in rhyme by spending a part of his time in this occupation; which not only brought the desired boon to him, but the most satisfactory pleasure to his friends, especially to his wife, who has been his faithful attendant and amanuensis throughout the whole period of his misfortune.

Childhood.

Bright springtime of existence! Sunniest spot
 In all the walks of time! To thee we turn
 Our weary, wandering eyes in sober years
 For gladsome beams of earthly happiness,
 Unmixed with present ills, and find as oft
 As we return, through memory's green arcades,
 Fresh flowers, whose fragrance long ago we breathed,—
 Bright streams of babbling purity, where erst
 We bathed our tiny feet in guileless mirth;—
 And hear soft airs of Heaven-like melody
 In every sylvan shade, our favorite haunts,
 When noontide's fervid heat sat on the hill;—
 And breathe the rarest odors earth has given;—
 And taste the sweetest relishes of fruits
 And spicy nectars, such as nevermore
 May charm the raptured sense, made doubly sweet
 By latent years of half forgetfulness:—
 And see the fairest faces—lovelier far,
 As seen through the long avenue of years—
 Faces that since have mouldered back to dust,
 But whose fair impress ne'er may be forgot.
 So we, the nameless, innocent delights
 Of early days, drink in again, well pleased,

Though wondering oft because we prized them not
 'Till they were gone ; and, as we dream them o'er,
 Each dreaming makes them happier seem, and oft
 We wish us young and innocent again.

Worldly Distinction.

How brilliant is yon stately dome
 Of pageantry and pride and power !
 There Luxury has found a home,
 And Mirth and Feasting rule the hour.
 There Music rare
 Enchants the ear,
 And Beauty crowns the scene :—
 Each form and face
 Of matchless grace
 Seems like a fairy queen.
 But all I hear and all I see
 Is heartless, hollow, false and vain :—
 Each heart that seems so glad and free,
 Is full of sadness, fear or pain.

How darksome is yon lowly cot,
 The peasant's home, far o'er the moor !
 How lone and cheerless looks the spot,
 Where dwells the unknown, humble poor !
 But nearer come,
 And 'tis a home
 Of peace and pure delight :
 Where toil each day,
 Keeps want at bay,
 And sweetens rest each night :—
 Where friendship's smiles are what they seem,
 Devoid of Flattery's lying art—
 Where life is not an empty dream,
 But Love and Truth bind heart to heart.

Well, what's the prized advantage, then,
 So envied, and so eager sought?
 Is it the mean applause of men,—
 Their homage false, by riches bought?
 Ye worldly wise,
 Is there no prize
 More worthy to be won?
 O learn to love
 True worth, above
 All titles 'neath the sun:
 And seek the bliss that will endure—
 The bliss that Heaven to all imparts,
 Who humbly live with motives pure—
 Contented minds and cheerful hearts.

Love's Threnody.

From my Eden, the Long Ago, springing,
 One form I see:
 And memory so often is bringing
 It back to me,
 That my heart to its grief keeps clinging,
 Like vine to tree:
 And has wooed the sad mood that is singing
 Love's Threnody.

Our vows to each other were plighted,
 Long time ago:
 And our hearts and our hopes, delighted,
 Knew naught of woe:
 But the bloom of my bliss was blighted
 By frost laid low:
 For she slept, and I wept, benighted—
 I loved her so.

Why Edith and I were parted,
 When both loved so :
 Why, from ambush, the death demon darted
 And dealt the blow :
 Why my lids with the tears then started,
Still overflow :
 Why I wonder and ponder, lonchearted,
 Sometime, I may know.

Once, thrilled by our meeting and mating
 In Spring-time's glow—
Now, chilled by the sleet, ice-plating,
 Stern season of snow !
 While Edith above is waiting,
 I wait below,
 'Till my tears with my years abating,
 Shall cease to flow.

Then anon I shall fly to meet her
 Of long ago :
 And how lovingly I shall greet her,
 No mortal may know !
 But I know that her smile will be sweeter
 Than sun-lit bow :
 And my flight out of night will be fleet
 Than aught below.

Oh Death ! cruel foe of youth's pleasure—
 No longer my foe—
 Swift as Phœbus now fly with my measure
 Of years so slow !
 For my spirit beyond the far azure,
 Unpinioned, must go,
 Like a dove to my love and my treasure,
 Long lost below.

The Blind Man to His Wife.

Julania, I've mem'ries ever of thee !
 Through the shadowy vista of years, I see
 The cloudless brow of a maiden free,
 Unwooded, yet my ideal wife.
 I've memories sweet of a trusting young bride,
 Embarked on a life-voyage close by my side,
 And I've memories sad of the ills that have tried
 To embitter the joys of my life.

I know that the sun in his onward race,
 Looks lovingly back on my saddened face ;
 For I felt the glow and the warm embrace
 Of his beams as they flit from the skies:
 And I know that thy countenance, beaming bright,
 Is bathing my brow with its calm, sweet light ;—
 But the curtains are down, and I see only night
 In the love and the light of thine eyes.

But dearest, though clouds of affliction have come,
 And bemantled my prospects with midnight's deep gloom,
 There is light in my heart, there is love in my home,
 And my wealth and my comfort are these:—
 One soul full of sympathy, one kindred mind,
 One heart ever true, and one voice ever kind,
 One child to caress me ; and calmly resigned,
 I dwell in contentment and peace.

Say not that old Time's busy fingers have laid
 On thy young heart a gloom, on thy visage a shade,
 And over thy brow half exultingly made
 His furrows of sorrow and care ;
 I mark not the changes the spoiler has wrought—
 The past is a canvass with life paintings fraught:
 And glowing with smiles and intelligent thought,
 Thou art pictured unchangeably there.

And if Heaven, for ages, our lives could spare,
 I should see a maiden with dark flowing hair,
 And should fancy thy brow and thy cheek still fair,
 And thy step still elastic and light:—

And this happy illusion in part, would suffice
 For the want of that rapture that comes through the eyes,
 If time, my ideal, should never surprise,
 By unveiling the real to sight.

Julania, thy vow thou hast faithfully kept—
 In my joys, thou hast smiled, in my woes, thou hast wept :
 And in dark hours of sickness while others have slept,
 Thou hast watched o'er my pillow alone.
 May our vows so oft made at the altar of prayer,
 Be as sacredly guarded from sin's luring snare,
 And the love-bond increase till with angels we share
 In the joys that no mortal hath known.

I've mem'ries Julania, blest mem'ries of thee ;
 But thy glance and thy smile, shall I nevermore see?
 Yes, I know, when the shadows of earth shall all flee,
 I, thy radiant face shall behold
 Over Jordan's dark tide where the angels abide—
 Where no eye is bedimmed, and no blessing denied—
 In that beautiful Aidem, and walk side by side,
 Through the city, whose streets are of gold.

An Acrostic

To my son, on the fourteenth anniversary of his birth with the gift of a Bible.

Could I to-day, with eyes undimmed, my boy,
 Look on the glowing face of health and joy,
 And for one hour, each lineament explore,
 My cup of earthly blessings would run o'er.
 Easy the wish, but vain. No light appears,
 Nor love nor wealth could gain, nor prayers, nor tears
 Bring me the boon desired—my cherished hope of years.

But O my boy, thy father's counsels, heed!—
 Unclasp this sacred Monitor and read,

“Remember thy Creator in thy youth.”
 Bind to thy heart, humility and truth!
 Adorn thy life with every Christian grace!
 Nor cease to run with patience all thy race,
 Knowing the prize is sure, while Heavenward is thy face.

Ever Becoming, Never Being.

In all within the course of year and sun,
 (Wherein all present things are but begun,)
 Lies self-defeat—a law of destiny,— Precluding that from being which would be
 For that which seems to be life is not life,—
 'Tis a commingling strange, of death and strife;
 And that which seems to be death is not death,
 But change to ceaseless change, from fleeting breath.
 And all realities abide in dreams,—
 All earthly light but in diviner beams
 That wander down from heaven. Nothing within
 The utmost world exists; all things begin Forever, and forever end.—Nothing more—
 Ever becoming something ne'er before
 But never ceasing long enough to be
 As shades in visions, that untimely flee.

Bright glows Aurora's sun in orient sky,
 And stream and mountain greet his joyous eye:
 But on he speeds forever. All we feel
 Is that the hours are passing; and they steal
 Somewhat of life from us, imparting new,
 Changed from the old perchance, as frost from dew,
 Or dew from frost; and when the sun at last
 Declines, we only know the hours have passed
 And stolen some fond hope, and some deep fear,
 And yet so slowly that we shed no tear,
 And raise no shout of laughter: they have given
 Their own return,—so gradual have riven
 Both cause of smile and sigh,—we scarcely know
 If change bears sweeter joy or darker woe.

A child in joy a butterfly assails,
 And culls the fairest flowerets of the vales
 Around his rural home—dashes the dew
 From their fresh cups, and marks the intense blue
 Of an all-cloudless sky, watching the herds
 And glad, amid sweet songs of meadow birds :
 But in the soul of that inconstant child,
 The sudden wind's low sighing, and the wild
 Refrain of moaning sea, wake thoughts of death.
 His peace is troubled, and the quickened breath
 And crepitant pulsations speak how life
 Though fair, is yet imbued with restless strife.
 To childhood's heart, no joy is permanent,
 But darts in mystic gleamings, wildly sent
 As from unworldly worlds—then speeds away ;—
 So hath its grief but momentary stay.—
 The power that wakened joy or grief, now fails ;
 And when it would be fixed, are set the sails
 That waft it off forever.—Not a tree
 Above, or weed below the briny sea
 Hath rest—hath life—but in life's constant loss,
 And the supplanting of a falling dross.

Our secret thoughts are ceasing evermore,
 And evermore beginning. Never before
 Have we reflected, felt and willed as now.—
 Never again, the same June decks the bough.
 As slowly in the sunny seasons grows
 The grass of fields, so thoughts, (both, in repose Perchance,) and actions, change: for changed they are
 Each instant, though the process be so gray
 And shadowy as to elude our sense,—
 Foil consciousness and all its evidence;
 And they who erewhile wept, forget to weep,
 And who too long have slept, are tired of sleep :
 So, slowly melt the paling stars away
 When the first gleam of morn proclaims the day.

Perhaps thou dread'st the morrow—ah, the morrow!
 But long anticipated sea of sorrow
 Doth scarce seem other than the river's tide

Whence we have seaward sailed. Oft hast thou sighed
 For some ideal bliss; but ere the hour,
 Steals silently a shadow o'er its power.
 In spring we overprize the violet
 The verdancy of valleys, but forget
 Their fairness in a day; and not again
 Are they so lovely as they would have been
 Had not their beauty waned in the long hours
 Of their becoming fair. Hope that is ours,
 Like Fear, creeps to his own grave, damp with tears :
 And they who feared erewhile, forget their fears;
 And who too long have slept, are tired of sleep,
 And souls who freest wept, have ceased to weep.—
 So things that wake our pleasure, wake our pain;
 Hope of the fair is by the fair one slain :
 And when the blossoms pour their fragrant breath,
 They're whirled by winds afar, to strew the grave of death.

Alas! what is the underlying power
 On earth, immutable from hour to hour?
 And how may that substratum constant be Varied in attributes eternally?
 If all things every instant thus are changed,
 And unity from its own self estranged,
 Although existence but involve the least
 Continuance of state, what can exist?
 Ah! that which seems to be life is not life,
 But mystic unity of death and strife.

She knelt beside the form of him whose sight
 Discerned as through a silvery veil, the light
 Of a supernal land. The slow hours waned
 To eventide, the watcher's heart was pained
 By each fast-failing breath, while Death's dark shade
 Hovered with mournful menace o'er his head.
 But when 'twas passed, so calm, so deep his sleep,
 That, gazing on the face, she could not weep.
 The pang so long approaching never came
 'Twas vanquished ere it could receive a name.
 The grief of death did in that moment flee—
 Succeeding grief is that of memory.

Silent and slow wither the brows of age ;
 And while life yet remains, is dimmed the page
 Of their fair morning's fame. Fewer the tears
 Each day, that would be shed around their biers :
 And slower, surer than the maple leaves
 Are changed in Autumn, the Destroyer weaves
 The chaplets of their rest. When past recall
 Grief-drops at their fount frozen, never fall,
 And they are gone—Death only was availing—
 Pallid the brows are, that through life were paling.

The ultimate end of life—'twere hard to tell,
 Where all men ever are about to dwell
 In some fruition,—thirsting by cool streams,—
 Starving 'mid fairest fruits wherewith earth teems.
 The days we never see are strangely fair—
 Delusion makes us blest, and kills our care.
 Ah ! they are happy who have not yet learned
 That Fate's a tyrant, and hath always spurned
 Sometime, his trusting spirits. Wert thou free
 In all besides in this thou could'st not be,
 Whatever thou desirest. In thy power,
 Abidest but volition. Evermore
 The wings of Hope grow icy in their gleam—
 The moss of years, by vale and mount and stream,
 Enwraps the silence of his secret graves,
 Where no deep sigh is heaved, no willow waves,
 And where no wild-bird weepeth. All the power
 Of angels or of demons, that can cower
 The mightiest soul, cannot encompass years
 Or days without a moment. All our fears
 And longings live but now. The aged man
 In sadness gazes o'er the dark brown span
 Of years to distant youth, nor sees the time
 When he grew old, or lost the young life's prime.
 How swift the change ! how empty was the dreaming !
 How dull the tapers that in youth were gleaming !

As an unusual beam in summer-day,
 Far down a secret vale may chance to stray
 O'er some lone fern, or fall through winter vine

Upon the coldness of a marble shrine,—
 Unseemly thus, the thought of earthly rest—
 This world with all its bliss, leaves us unblest.
 Hark! what reproving call comes to our ears?
 'Tis the deep voice of the eternal years.—
 "For that which seems to be life is not life,
 But a strange unity of death and strife:
 And that which seems to be death is not death,
 But crowning purpose of all mortal breath!"

Be True.

What though others false may prove?
 Take no heed,
 But be thou true!
 Though they render hate for love,
 Scorn the deed,
 Yet be thou true!
 Keep thine angry passions still!
 Then shall peace thy bosom fill:—
 Time shall bring thee good, not ill,
 In thy need,
 If thou art true.

When temptations 'round thee rise,
 Stand thou firm,
 And be thou true!
 Sin, alone in yielding lies—
 Crush its germ,
 And so be true!
 Take the Bible for thy guide!
 Ever in its truths abide!
 Sorrow not when fools deride!—
 Thus 'tis proven
 Thou art true.

You and I.

Affectionately inscribed to my husband, C. W. Farwell.

Twenty-five years ago to-night,
 Since we stood together, you and I!
 You, in the pride of manhood's might,
 I, with a trembling, sweet delight,
 Pledging our love with the marriage tie,
 Standing together, you and I.

No flowers bloomed on the crispy air,
 On that winter's eve so long ago ;
 But now, in their fragrance rich and rare,
 They brighten our home with their beauty fair ;
 And in language unspoken would freely bestow
 The heavenly graces they symbol below.

Twenty-five years! what a change they hold!
 Yea, even the days, each a change doth wear ;—
 For the eye then so bright with its glances bold,
Now, with lustre dimmed, says we're growing old :
 And though few were the treasures of silver rare,
 They are plentiful now in our whitening hair.

Twenty-five years! how swift their flight!
 Years that have brought both joy and pain :
 It seems like a dream of yesternight—
 The hopes that we cherished—the visions bright,
 Of a high estate, and of worldly gain :—
 Ah me! only the visions now remain.

Yet the Father who watches over all,
 And gives e'en the lily, its brilliant hue,
 Hath answered our every feeble call,
 And saved us from many a hurt and fall :—
 At night and at morning blest anew—
 Dispensing the bread, our daily due.

Twenty-five years! have they wisdom brought?
 Some truths they have taught us o'er and o'er :—
 That the glittering baubles we eagerly sought,
 Have one by one, given us toil for naught :
 And much that we called the golden ore,
 Was only the gilt which falsity wore.

Twenty-five years ago to-night !

And the years to come will more quickly fly :
 While deep they are hidden from human sight,
 Yet our faith looks upward for the light
 That brightens the way to our home on high,
 As we journey together, you and I.

Pray.

"Evening, morning and at noon, will I pray ; and He shall hear my voice."

Pray in the hours of life's morning,
 Pray, though the skies are fair ;
 Pray for the Father's blessing
 Pray for His constant care.
 Thou knowest not all thy weakness,
 Nor what all thy future may be :
 But whether in clouds or in sunshine,
 His grace is sufficient for thee.

Pray, too, in life's glorious noontime,
 Though honor and wealth and fame
 Be thine without stint or measure ;—
 Call then, on thy Saviour's name ;
 For danger and sin still surround thee—
 Thy pleasures and gold may grow dim ;
 But the fervent prayer of the righteous,
 Availeth much with Him.

Pray on through the deepening twilight!
 Whether the hours are fraught
 With the fruits of honest labor
 And the blessings thou hast sought ;
 Or whether with disappointment,
 Thou seest the harvest small,

Turn thou to the All wise Father,
 Whose eye hath foreseen it all :
 And who in the future designeth,
 Each sore-stricken heart to heal :
 For a day, or a life, ne'er sufficeth,
 All His plans or His love to reveal.

Flowers.

How shall I sing thy praises, count thy worth,
 Search out the hidden wisdom ye enfold,
 Describe thy beauty, prove thy royal birth,
 Bright flowers ?

No muse inspires my soul or tunes the lyre—
 No burning thoughts wait on my speechless tongue—
 What then shall kindle the poetic fire,
 Loved flowers ?

And echo softly whispers in the ear,
 "Love can most fitly frame the tribute fond,
 Which these, thy 'voiceless preachers' fain would hear,
 E'en flowers."

So love with cheerful zeal, inspires and tunes
 The heart and voice in unison to rise ;
 And all to thee, in adoration turn,
 Sweet flowers !

And as I gaze upon thy brilliant hues—
 Thy wonderful and ever varying forms,
 And breathe the fragrance which thy lives diffuse,
 Gay flowers !

I wonder earth should be so richly dressed,
 Where all in nature, lives, but to decay;
 And from such fate, how gladly would I wrest
 My flowers.

And then I think of that immortal land
 Where love and beauty never fade or die:
 O, there, we'll find thee, on that glorious strand*,
 Heaven's flowers!

My Ship.

I sent out my ship in the summer of youth,
 On a tranquil sea while the day was fair:
 With hope bounding high, and a heart full of mirth,
 Not heeding the dangers surrounding it there.

'Twas heavily laden from prow to stern,
 With the choicest freight I had in store—
 Who gaily expected its prompt return
 With the treasures I'd longed for o'er and o'er.

My freight? There were wishes not often expressed,
 There were longings, I always had known:
 And high aspirations, never confessed,
 For self-aggrandizement alone.

There was beauty of feature, I fain would possess
 A lovely and graceful form—
 A stately manner, and charming address,
 Which proves "to the manor born".

And knowledge? I craved it with all my heart,
 With the virtues the pure only know;
And wealth! were it mine, it would surely impart
 All the pleasures desired, here below.

I would charm the world's ear with poetic art,
 And in music's loftiest strains,
I would soothe and comfort the sorrowing heart—
 Bid the suffering forget all their pains.

I would speak to the erring and tempted of earth,
 In that sweetly persuasive voice,
Which would lure them from crime and the halls of mirth,
 To the temples where saints rejoice.

It was all I had for this ship of mine,
 As I sent it across the deep;
Nor feared to trust to the "helmsman's line",
 A successful course to keep.

But days have passed, yes, years have flown
 Since she glided out to sea;
Yet never the ship I had called my own,
 Came back into port to me.

I have watched in vain for her snowy sails,
 Through days that were fair and bright;
And often with strained and anxious gaze,
 I have watched through the live-long night.

Mayhap, in my hasty and ignorant greed,
 'Twas o'erladen, but not with the best;
And the wisdom of which I had so much need,
 Should have been my only request.

So I've none of the treasures I sought to obtain
 By sending my ship out to sea:
Though with diligent labor I've sought in the main,
 The possessor of all to be.

Are my wishes vain? Have I toiled for naught?
 Have the cargo and ship gone down?
 O where are the treasures so eagerly sought,
 The gems, for my heavenly crown?

God grant, on the bright immortal shore,
 Safely anchored in harbor there,
 I may find my ship with its precious store—
 A harvest of deeds wrought long before—
 Heavenly jewels, without compare.

Evening Hymn.

When the shades of evening hover
 All the dewy landscape o'er—
 When the birds fly to their cover
 And we hear their songs no more,
 Save the nightingale's sweet trilling,
 Or the cooing of the dove,
 Father, by Thy grace instilling,
 In our hearts a filial love,—
 Give us feelings of devotion!
 Let our prayers like incense rise!
 As we bow in adoration
 To Thy throne above the skies!

Every moment passed in gladness,
 Every blessing on our way—
 E'en the hours of pain and sadness—
 All the trials of the day—
 Help us to accept in meekness!
 Grant that each a lesson prove!
 In the untried future, give us
 Full assurance of Thy love!

May we follow in the footsteps
 Of the Saviour, Thy dear Son,
 Keeping all His holy precepts
 'Till the heavenly prize is won :
 And when shadows of life's evening
 Thickly gather 'round our way,
 Lead and cheer us 'till the morning
 Ushers in the Eternal day.

My Cross.

"The cross is heavy Lord," I said,
 "And I am weak, too weak to bear it up.
 Remove it then I pray Thee, let me rest
 Awhile from these sore trials, lest the weight
 Which daily, hourly, more appalling seems,
 Prostrate and crush me 'neath the heavy load,
 And heart and flesh together fail.

'Tis rough,
 And never hath these tender palms been torn
 By aught so thorny as this splintered wood.—
 Canst Thou not see it is too rough for me?
 And then the way is steep, though once upraised,
 My feet will surely stumble as they climb
 The dark and narrow road, so cut and bruised
 With toiling o'er these jagged stones they'll be."

Then while I lingered, pouring forth my plaint,
 The darkness deepened o'er the stony way,
 And darker in the shadows seemed the cross :
 Which now lay prostrate, where my pathway led,
 Till suddenly, a voice which well I knew,
 Broke out upon the sullen darkness, saying,
 "If thou wouldst follow Me, take up thy cross!
 No other way leads to my Father's house—
 No other way, can hope and light be given."

Then, bending low, with desperate appeal
 To Him, the Helper, in our sorest needs,
 I raised the ponderous and unseemly wood,
 Remembering meanwhile, that He likewise,
 With scourged and bleeding form, bore also His,
 To an ignominious death and shame,
 Which afterwards brought endless glory crowned.
 But O how changed my lifted burden grew
 Which rough and heavy now no longer seemed,
 For He, the Mighty and Compassionate,
 Inspired my heart with courage, limbs with strength,
 So that with confident and buoyant steps,
 I carried it with cheerfulness.

The way

Which hitherto so dark and lonely seemed,
 Now, all illumined with celestial light,
 Shewed many a covert, many a hiding place,
 In which the storm-beseiged and fainting soul,
 Secure from flood or tempest, might find rest,
 And neither flames or scorching heat afflict :
 For Christ, the Infinite, the eternal Rock
 O'ershadowed all the land.

Farewell to Summer.

The leaves are falling one by one ;
 The fruits are mellowing in the sun ;
 The birds are singing sadder lays ;—
 Farewell, farewell, bright summer days.

Our hopes are falling one by one ;
 Our works are telling what we've done ;
 The castle grand is vapor gray ;—
 Farewell, farewell, bright summer's day !

Obachickquid.

[It is an historical fact that the squaw of Obachickquid was carried off by Uncas, sachem of the Mohegans. Hobbamocko was the name given by the Indians to the principal evil spirit.—Kitchtan, their name for "the good spirit." It is interesting to notice the ease with which the author uses the style of expression common with Indians, in this poem.]

When the night-winds
With the shadows
Filled the woodpaths,
From his hunting
Came all foot-tired
To his wigwam,
Obachickquid.

"Lulu!" called he;
Came no answer.
"Lulu!" cried he:
Came no answer.
"Lulu! hear me, Obachickquid!"
Came no answer.

Dying, fire was:
Cold, the pot hung:
Gone, the wolf-robe
From the bed-place:
Gone, the necklace
And the moccasins:
Left, was silence.

Half the moon shone,
Darkened hills half:
Cold the dew fell;
For the wolf howled.
By his doorway,
Glooming, grieving
Obachickquid.

Thought and asked he:—
"Hobbamoko
Evil whispered,
Then she left me.

Who the lover?
Now he sleepeth
On my wolf-robe!"

Brushed the grief-dews
From his forehead;
Bow and quiver
Axe and knife took,
Through the woods went
Swift as antlered
Obachickquid.

Out, the moon went;
Far the wolf slept;
Soft the brooks ran:
Low a fire glowed:—
Peering, crouching,
Creeping, stealthy
Obachickquid.

By the fagots
Indian sitting
From a bough hut
Sobbing, wailing,
Broke the bow-string
Obachickquid!
Gone, was Uncas.

Then the thongs cut—
Lulu kissed he;
Turned his back then,
Scorned her—left her.
By the fire sat
With his head down
Obachickquid.

Near him, Lulu,
 Hair in wild locks,
 Cheeks with tears wet,
 Red her eyes were ;
 Like the birch tree
 By the storm shook,
 Trembled deep she.

Gently hugged her.
 Tender spoke he :—
 "Good was Kitcotan
 To protect you.
 Kiss me, Lulu,
 And forgive me !
 Wrong, I did you."

Spoke these words then :
 "Bend the lilies
 When the north wind
 Sweeps the vale through,
 Then to sunshine
 Turn their cups bright—
 Blast has touched not."

From his wigwam,
 Soon the smoke curled,
 Bright the fire blazed,
 Glad the pot sung.
 In the sunshine,
 Spread the wolf-robe
 For his Lulu,
 Obachickquid.

Harvest Home.

When the woods are aflame with brilliant hues,
 And the sun with a golden glow imbues
 Whatever looms on the tremulous air ;—

When the dusty quakers drowsily fly
 As the ponderous team moves slowly by,
 And the gossamer floats in the ether rare ;—

When the apples are ripening in the sheen,
 And the mellowing pumpkins shine between
 The withering rows that leave them bare ;—

It is then sleepy nature simulates rest :
 And the farmer, with harvests plentifully blest,
 The autumnal repose would dreamily share.

But to man was not given an annual rest ;
 Unceasing activity was God's wise behest
 To the lord of all, in the earth and the air.

There are manifold duties beyond cropping the soil,
 Or disposing the gains of requited toil :—
 In benevolence to all assigned to our care ;—

In improving the mind, in refining the sense,
 In learning to gratefully recompense
 The Giver of everything good and fair ;—

In preserving the germs for another year,—
 In preparing ourselves for the heavenly sphere—
 For the Harvest Home that awaits us there.

Proem.

I know that I for years have loved
 Abroad in Nature's face to look :
 I know that I have oft been moved
 To sympathy with bird and brook :
 I know that from my hearthstone I
 Have gone to view the sunset sky ;
 And climbed the hill, in twilight cold and gray,
 To, at his airy gates, await the rising day.

I know I have not been as one
 Who seeth naught the fact behind,—
 To whom the sun is simply sun,
 To whom the wind is simply wind,
 The wood a wood, the hill a hill,—
 Mere growth or mere existence. Still,
 I cannot speak whereof my heart hath known :
 I live as one who lives in silence and alone.

But felt as deep by him who lives
 Without the gift of utterance,
 May be the music Nature gives Whereof his life hath cognizance,—

The solemn undertones of night
 And morning's pæan of delight,—
 As e'er by him who sounds the verbal keys
 And gives his every thought their fitting melodies.

And felt as deep by him may be
 The graces of Arcadian days :
 The quiet and amenity
 He finds within his greenwood ways :
 The splendor that around him lies,
 Of hill and vale and changing skies ;
 The equal miracle of sun and sod :
 The stately flow of time, and epic plan of God.

And he who loves to tarry by
 The singing of his woodland rills :
 Who finds a solace in the sky,
 A strength and spirit in the hills :
 Who loves the beautiful and good,
 The close discerning habitude :
 He makes a poem of his days and weeks.
 And he who feels it all is one with him who speaks.

He Climbs my Knee.

I cannot see him anywhere,
 Nor hear his childish singing,
 His little prattle here and there,
 His silver toy-bell ringing.
 Oh, wherefore comes he not to me,
 As he was wont, to climb my knee?

Still sings the bird he bade me hear
 With his uplifted finger,
 And in our neighbor's garden near,
 The flowers he saw, still linger :
 Oh, wherefore comes he not to me,
 To point at them and climb my knee?

His blocks lie scattered hereabout,
 His horses wait his riding :—
 Where is he? At my back, or out
 Beneath my window hiding?
 Oh, wherefore comes he not to me,
 As he was wont, to climb my knee?

Ah! to my higher self he comes
 In moments that are golden ;
 For sunshine, offered to all homes,
 I am to God beholden:
 My smiling angel-boy I see,
 And, soft and light, he climbs my knee.

Worship with Nature.

How restful is the Sabbath
 That lieth on the hills !
 How touching are the sermons
 Whose preachers are the rills !
 Where every wood a fane is,
 And every rock a shrine,
 And every wind a psalmist
 That singeth in the pine.

No words have I to utter
 What in my heart is known,
 But it is given language
 By lips that seem my own ;
 And so the lowly psalmist
 That singeth in the pine,
 In all it singeth, uttereth
 The spirit that is mine.

Oh, sweet it is to worship
 Where from us, one by one
 Fade all our vague misgivings
 As mists before the sun !

Where we in clearer vision,
 Around us and above,
 Behold His hand of goodness—
 His answering face of love !

My Lady Birch.

The birch, most shy and ladylike of trees. Lowell.

You are indeed a lady,
 My tall and slender birch ;
 And none will find a fairer one
 Wherever he may search.

My lady birch, I wonder
 What does my presence give
 To one so very delicate,
 So finely sensitive.

I only know there never Seem darker stains on me
 Than when I come and look on you
 And all your whiteness see.

My lady birch, I love you :—
 And yet, can love be right ?
 You are so very chaste and fair,
 So fitly veiled in white ;

You look so like a spirit
 Beneath the moon and sun ;
 You are so purely beautiful ;—
 A lady, wholly one !

Robert Dinsmore.

Windham, N. H., 1758-1836.

Robert Dinsmore, rustic bard,
 At his labor long and hard
 Found his inspiration here,
 On this hillside, by this mere,
 And, a plowman all his days,
 Sang in plowmen's ears his lays.

Lays of love, its smiles and tears,
 Lays of home, its hopes and fears,
 Plain expressions of a heart
 Troubled by no thought of art,
 Feeling deeply what it felt,
 Melting as a heart should melt.

Pathless lies his grassy mound
 In your ancient burial-ground,
 Where the cowbell tinkles low,
 Piney odors come and go,
 And a few wild flowers rise
 Seldom seen by human eyes ;

Scarcely now the lips of Fame
 Here or there repeat his name,—
 But the merit that was his Hearts commend with emphasis :
 Honest thought and honest phrase
 Charm full many nowadays.

Let about his place of rest
 By our feet the grass be prest !
 Let our grateful tribute be Simple as his memory—
 This unribboned bunch of flowers
 Common in his day as ours !

RALPH H. SHAW.

Idlesse.

Here at the lake
 My ease I take
 When all the hills are lazy :
 I like to be
 Where I can see
 So much that looks so lazy.

Beneath this pine,
 Few thoughts are mine
 Of life—its gains or losses :
 No more to me
 Is destiny
 Than to these ferns and mosses.

I ask no why
 Or wherefore—I
 Am full of calm reliance :—
 I would not look
 Through any book
 For any bit of science.

Nor do I care
 How doctrines fare,
 Religious or politic ;
 What questions great
 Vex church or state
 And make the world a critic.

Out on the cause
 That wants new laws,
 New creeds and such inventions !
 I would not hear
 What fills the ear
 In senates or conventions.

And so I take
 Here at the lake,
 When all the hills are hazy,
 My fill of ease,
 And as I please,
 My share of being lazy.

Jettie's Wood.

This is the wood she loved to seek,
 And this the sound she loved to hear,
 Who oft came hither, pale and weak,
 In her last lingering year.

Too careless seemed the laugh of rills
 That yonder in the vale are found ;
 She only gained among the hills
 A solace in this sound.

In this low sound of pine and fir,
 That as she listened seemed to be
 From out a calmer world to her,
 As seems it now to me.

It seems to tell my spirit all
 Her spirit gained in its release—
 The rest where His wood-whispers fall,
 Among His palms of peace.

This is a spiritual wood to me ;—
 I love to come and tarry here,
 Where her most restful look I see,
 As in her last, last year.

Again.

Again to these familiar hills
 My love has come with me,
And like a light and careless girl
 She bears me company.
Again for her these wildwoods wave,
 These winding waters pour ;
Again I live, in all I feel,
 Our first, sweet summer o'er.

Again she wears the jaunty cap
 She would not wear in town,
And, tied with silken bows, she lets
 Her braided tresses down.
For years a mother, still her face
 Its early freshness wears.
Ah ! who would say that she had borne
 A hundred household cares ?

Again I wait to raise the boughs
 Above her bending head,
As when amid the tangled wood,
 Her early steps I led ;
Again to help her climb the steep,
 The rough and rugged way,
As when a bashful lad I longed
 My hand in hers to lay.

Oh, may she know that still to me,
 Among these summer hills,
She's praised by all their whispering airs
 And all their singing rills !
And may I many summers live
 Our first, sweet summer o'er,
Ere light among these hills shall be
 Her step and mine no more !

Reverie.

Oft my mother's clear laugh o'er my senses steal,
 And oft on my lips her caresses I feel;
 Yet 'tis only in dreams, for the years have been long
 Since she went from our presence to join Heaven's throng.

Dear little mother! thy swift, willing hands
 Were ever so ready to do;
 No feet were so tireless and no voice more tender,
 No heart e'er so loyal and true.

How often when trouble and sadness oppress me,
 I long for her presence, to cheer;
 Her counsel to guide me when ways are so darksome,
 Her hand-clasps, so loving and dear.

Dear little mother! thy foot-steps now follow
 The pathways by waters so still;
 And God hath restored to thine eyes their lost brightness,
 To thy voice, the old musical trill.

Oh mother, if ever is given to angels
 Permission from Heaven to stray;
 And still to watch over with tender compassion
 Their friends on this old earth so gray;

Keep me from forgetting the faith that you taught me,
 When in childhood, I knelt at your knee;
 With the same faithful heart, and eyes soft and loving,
 Dear little mother, keep watch over me!

There are Friends We Never Forget.

It was only the words of a quaint old tune,
 Yet they live in my memory yet;
 They've rung in my mind this afternoon—
 "There are friends that we never forget."

Those are the words I seem to hear
 As I watch for the sun to set ;
 And close my eyes to keep back the tear
 For the friends I can never forget.

There are many friends both tried and true,
 And friends that for years we've not met :
 But those whom we've loved and trusted too,
 Are the ones we never forget.

Then I hear these words sung low and sweet,
 "There are hearts we ever hold dear"—
 And the face of a friend I've loved to meet,
 In the gloaming seems quite near.

Perhaps that face I may never see,
 Nor the clear-toned voice ne'er hear;
 But 'twill be remembered for aye by me,
 And that heart I shall ever hold dear.

"We meet with a kiss in a moment of bliss,"
 Rings the voice triumphantly clear,
 And I try in vain to forget the strain,
 "We part with a sigh and a tear."

Some laughing jests, some sober talks,
 And our hands in a last clasp met :
 A lingering look, a low "good-bye ;"
 "There are friends we never forget."

In the time of life when flowers fade,
 And autumn leaves fall sere,
 And the shadows cause a drowsy shade,
 There'll be hearts that we'll ever hold dear.

And longing looks we shall backward cast,
 To the days when dear friends we met :
 And we'll always love to the very last
 The friends we can never forget."

Moll Lockett's Curse.

'Tis a curious Indian legend—
 In my youth I heard it told,
 How Moll Lockett cursed the white man,
 When he stole the Indians' gold.

* * * * *

'Mid the river's rolling waters,
 Was an island green with trees ;
 Hemlocks tossed their drooping branches
 With each fitful, passing breeze.
 Through their tops, the sighing zephyrs
 Sang in soothing, slumberous tone,
 As the proud old monarchs nodded
 To the river's dancing foam.

Underneath their spicy branches
 Was the Indians' camping ground ;
 And they often came and dwelt here,
 As the seasons rolled around.
 'Twas the tribe of Rokomeko—
 (The St. Francis called by some,)
 From the land beyond the mountains,
 These few wild, red men had come,

And along the Androscoggin
 Lived and roamed for many a day ;
 'Till with many a season's hunting,
 These tall braves grew old and gray.
 Soon 'twas whispered 'mongst the settlers,
 That the Indians hid their gold
 'Neath the plume-like, feathery branches
 Of a stately hemlock old.

So the white men talked about it,
 Wondering at the story told—
 Wishing they could find the treasure
 Called the Indians' buried gold.

There was one among these settlers
 Who for riches always longed,
 And resolved to have the treasure,
 "Be it right or be it wrong."

So when Autumn tinged the forest
 With its colors bright and gay,
 And the Indians started, hunting,
 For the "big lakes" far away ;
 One fair night in bright October,
 When the hunter's moon ran high,
 O'er the river like an arrow,
 Sped a "dug-out," swift and sly ;

Disappearing 'mong the shadows
 Of the hemlocks dark and old—
 Its propeller, the white settler,
 Bound to have the red men's gold.
 Was it worth the price—his honor?
 Ah ! that never will be known.
 When the Indians next encamped there,
 'Twas to find their treasure flown.

But one squaw among their number,
 Lithe and handsome, young and bold,
 Found and knew the iron hatchet
 They had hidden with the gold.
 Yet 'twas not upon the island
 That this tool she chanced to find,
 But within a white man's dwelling.
 Then Moll Lockett spake her mind.

Straight and slender as a sapling,
 With her flashing eyes so black,
 Stood the radiant Indian maiden,
 Pointing out the wild, rough track
 That the white man's feet should follow
 In the years that stretched ahead.
 Better for that grasping settler,
 Had Moll Lockett struck him dead.

"Never shall the white thief prosper!
 The Great Spirit says the same;
 And misfortune dire shall follow
 Every one who bears his name!
 Trouble shall be theirs forever,
 Home and lands be swept away;
 When success has almost crowned them,
 Sorrow then, will come to stay.

Sickness sore shall fall upon them,
 They shall die before they're old;
 For the Indians' curse is on them,
 Since the white man stole our gold.
 And when drouth and famine reach them,
 When their troubles seem the worst,
 The Great Spirit will not aid them."—
 Thus Moll Lockett stood and cursed.

Many years have come and vanished,
 Since this happened, long ago,
 And the tossing, nodding hemlocks,
 Ages past, were all laid low;
 But descendants of that settler,
 Whether aged, young or bold,
 Never have been known to prosper,
 Since the Indians' curse of old.

And on bright October evenings,
 Ghostly boats the river cross;
 While upon old Hemlock Island,
 Ghostly branches seem to toss;
 And beneath a stately hemlock,
 In the shadows you'll behold
 Molly Lockett's ghostly figure,
 Where the Indians hid their gold.

As Thy Days—Thy Strength.

Grandsire's head with age was gray,
 We with youth were young and gay,
 And to us he'd often say,

 "You've no cares at all!"

He was wrong, it was not true—
 I had cares and so had you;
 Childish griefs should have their due—

 "Men are only boys grown tall"

 After all.

Every heart knows best its grief,
 Passing years oft bring relief,
 Childhood's sorrows may be brief

 Like the truest prayers :

Yet they often leave a smart
 In each little trusting heart;
 Leaving scars which ne'er depart—

 Ghosts of their earliest cares.

Mayhap it was a broken doll,
 A mislaid hoop or long lost doll;
 Some bird upflown beyond recall,

 Or friendship snapped in twain.

Yet oft amidst those golden hours,
 When we searched for sweetest flowers,
 Growing wild in youth's bright bowers,

 We felt that life was vain.

Though with years we have grown older,
 In meeting cares we are no bolder,
 Not one whit the better soldier

 Than we were when we were small.

Sure I make quite plain my meaning—
 You can see the way I'm leaning—
 Truths with which these lines are teeming—

 "Men are only boys grown tall"

 After all.

A New Version.

Softly turning the leaves to-day,
Of a book that for years had been laid away,
From its pages there fluttered a folded scrap,
The sight of which sent my memory back
To a long ago day in sunny June,
And two hearts beating to love's sweet tune.

O royal roses all pink and white,
Aglow with the splendor of sunshine bright!
O rare, sweet pinks, I can see you yet!
And that perfect day I shall ne'er forget,
Nor the brown, brown eyes of my lover bold,
As the dear old story he softly told.

But what has that scrap of paper to do
With the sunny day and "the lover true,"
You ask,—while a word of quick surprise
Gleams in the depths of your roguish eyes,
As they meet my own with a questioning look,
Then downward glance to the quaint, red book,

And back to my face, as if to dare
Me to tell the tale which they think is there.
Ah! well, it was brief—a "summer's dream,"
That crossed my life like a gay sunbeam;
And into my heart no shadow cast,
For "Love never questions how long it will last."

Yes, those were the words on the folded scrap,
That had power to take me swiftly back,
'Till again I inhale the sweet perfume
That only comes with a day in June,
And seem to feel the strong handclasp
As then—when I asked, "How long will it last."

"Love never questions," he promptly replied,
As we stood in the doorway, side by side;
And it seemed to me that the bees in the clover

Kept humming his words right over and over ;
 While the songs that the birds sang in flying past
 Was, "Love never questions how long it will last."

* * * * *

No lover's quarrel, no broken heart—
 We two, just simply drifted apart :
 And the words he told me to keep, for aye,
 Have all these years been hidden away.
 We meet as friends with a warm handclasp,
 And speak now and then of days in the past.

With his "home" and his "own" he is happy always,
 While my small kingdom, by love I sway ;
 So we are even,—no fault to find—
 No sighing for vanished peace of mind—
 No remorseful longings to live o'er the past,
 For each one is glad that it did not last.

At Bear Lake.

"O that bright summer day you'll remember
 When we roamed on the beach, you and I."

Far away the elfins wake
 The echoes of the Lake.
 Where I seem to see the rippling waters lave
 The shining silvery strand,
 With its wealth of gleaming sand,
 Where once we watched the motion of each wave.

While the zephyrs floated soft
 From the distant mountain top,
 A message seemed to murmur that bright day ;
 "The footprints that you make
 On the shore of Life's broad lake,
 The waves of Destiny will never wash away.

And the rays of dancing light
 Shone through the tree-tops bright,
 Making rainbows on each sparkling wavelets crest ;
 As we laughed and talked so gay,
 While the hours sped away,
 And the golden sun sank lower in the west.

"Rocky Point" showed far away,
 Lighted by each glancing ray,
 And the cottage hid within the shady grove :
 While the boat upon the beach,
 Just within the water's reach,
 Are recalled where'er by Fancy we may rove.

And oft times with fingers light,
 We will turn the pages bright,
 Of this album filled with memory's pictures dear ;
 And again within our reach
 Seem to see the sandy beach,
 And the ripple of the water bright and clear.

There are many pictures fair
 Hid within that album, rare
 There are some that we have painted, you and I :
 And though living far apart,
 Yet within each faithful heart,
 We know there'll be a meeting by and by.

Memory's Bells.

Through dim, mysterious darkness,
 From far-off sylvan dells,
 Comes the sound of mellow music—
 'Tis the chime of memory's bells.
 Soft and low,
 To and fro,
 List the tender chime !
 Sweet and slow—
 Rung I know,
 By friends of the olden time.

They rang just now a joyful peal
 Of some happy day in the past :
 When with playmates full of childish glee,
 The hours slipped by too fast.
 Glad and gay,
 From far away,
 Hear the merry sound!
 Some roguish fay
 Of a summer day.
 The memory bells have found.

Then comes a chime enchanting sweet,
 Don't you hear the glad bells ring?
 As silvery toned as the musical notes
 Of the songs which the angels sing.
 Sweet and clear,
 Sounding near,
 Coming and going so fleet:
 They touch the ear
 With words of cheer,
 This music, so madly sweet.

Ah! now there comes a weary strain
 That sounds like a wail of woe :
 Death is ringing the memory bells,
 Tolling them sad and slow.
 Sad and low,
 Full of woe,
 Out of the shadowy land:
 Soft and slow.
 To and fro,
 They are rung by a vanished hand.

Flute-like and clear as a bird's free song,
 Ring these bells from the vanished past :
 And they bring me many a message true
 From the years that have fled so fast.
 Now swift, now slow,
 To and fro,

Sadly, sweetly they chime;
 Now high, now low,
 But rung I know,
 By friends of the olden time.

Flower and Butterfly.

The flower said to the butterfly celestial,
 No wings have I.
 Fate chains me down to things low and terrestrial,
 Thou soar'st high.

The dark sod holds me while the bright skies woo thee;
 Ah cruel lot!
 Might I but rise and soar aloft unto thee,
 The earth forgot!

It may not be, gay blossoms without number
 Woo thee away.
 While no earth bonds thy airy wings encumber,
 I dwell with clay.

Flitting from place to place, bright as the dawning,
 Thy lot appears,
 But every starry eve and dewy morning
 Finds me in tears.

Oh, if thou love'st me, leave the air's dominions,
 And dwell with me.
 Take root on earth, my king, or give me pinions
 To soar with thee!

After the French of Victor Hugo.

FRANCES A. SHAW.

Heroes.

Our world has battle-fields where truth and right
 Find heroes nobler, grander in God's sight,
 Than they who fall foremost in gory fight.

Great heroes bring forth great souls, but bugle call,
 Summons a host, weak, faint of heart and small,
 To that God sends forth in his cause to fall.

Beyond the smoke of battle lies the prize,
 Guerdon of toil, faith and sacrifice ;
 Few find it here, but many in the skies.

The man who braves the world's neglect and scorn,
 To lift the lowly, succor the forlorn,
 Who conquers self—he is the hero born.

His name may die forgotten by his peers,
 But seed he sowed in care and toil and tears,
 Shall bear rich harvests through immortal years.

FRANCES A. SHAW.

Silence.

The ocean depths are ever mute,
 The surges roar.
 Life is the ocean, fame is but the bruit
 Along the shore.

Schiller.

Soft falls the dew, the flowers in stillness grow,
 Suns, moons and stars act noiselessly their part,
 Dumb is in infinity, above, below,
 Mute are the forces that sway Nature's heart,
 In silence shod God's holy angels go
 Through earth's dark ways to solace mortal woe.
 And 'mid life's discords quiet hearts rejoice
 To know the Lord is in the still, small voice.

"The mountains shall bring peace." In lofty calm
 High natures dwell the babbling throng above.
 Voiceless are dreams, and sleep, and beauty's charm,
 Wordless the holiest faith, the mightiest love.
 Of deeper meaning than aught language saith,
 Is thy rapt, silent majesty, O Death!

A grand, true life needs not fame's idle bruit,
 Far from the world's strife, passion and uproar,
 Is wrought the poet's verse, ripens the fruit
 Of science, art and philosophic lore.
 While shallow streams rush past with fret and foam,
 And surface waves break wildly on the shore,
 While low in heaven the storm-cloud makes its home,
 The heights and depth are silent evermore.

FRANCES A. SHAW.

Hesperus.

Hesperus, in night's stately train, the fairest, queenliest star!
 I watch thee as through heaven's broad path speeds on thy silver car,
 As from thy height so far above change, sorrow and decay,
 Thou gazest on this lower world where like a summer's day,
 Bird-songs and flowers and halcyon hours and bright hopes fade away.

O, that my soul, an essence pure, might leave its prison of clay,
 Might mount with thee, with thee speed on along the starry way!
 That I too from serenest heights, might view life's care and woe,
 As sun and moon and stars behold the ocean's ebb and flow,
 The restless waves that foam and fret and sob and sigh below!

Taught by thy fate, O Icarus, who sought on mortal wings,
 To scale immortal heights, I curb earth's vain imaginings.
 I bide my hour to burst these bonds of time and sense—to rise
 And claim my birthright with high souls passed on to win the prize—
 The goal and guerdon God hath set "in yonder starry skies."

After the Spanish.

FRANCES A. SHAW.

Ich Wollte Heim.

Summer has fled, the summer birds are winging
 Their way past ocean's foam.
 I watch their flight, and hear them softly singing :—
 "I would go home."

The ship speeds on to the sure haven's closes,
 The brook runs to the sea;
 The tired child in mother-arms reposes.
 Christ, I would rest with Thee!

From life's lost strains this one refrain yet lingers,
 Where'er I roam,—
 This chord sad, sweet as touched by seraph fingers :—
 "I would go home!"

FRANCES A. SILAW.

Stabat Mater Speciosa.

A hymn of the Nativity.

By a manger cradle lowly,
 Stood the Virgin Mother holy,
 Mother of our blessed Lord ;
 While her heart with gladness swelling,
 Throbb'd with rapture past all telling,
 Joy beyond all thought or word.

Oh, what rapture unexpressed
 Thrilled that virgin pure and blessed,
 Mother of God's only Son !
 As with smiles of love and gladness,
 Joy unmixed with grief or sadness,
 She beheld her beauteous One.

Who his tenderness would smother,
 If he saw this holy mother
 In her ecstasy of joy :
 Near the babe blest vigils holding,
 With her arms the child enfolding,
 Bending o'er her sinless boy ?

Cradled in that lowly manger,
 She beholds the heavenly stranger,
 For man's guilt a ransom sent :
 While the feeble cries and wailing
 Of the babe her ears assailing
 With the low of oxen blent.

"Christ is born in manger lowly",
 Sing the choir of angels holy,—
 "Peace on earth, to men good will!"
 While heaven's shining bands are praising,
 Old and young stand speechless gazing,
 Joy and hope their bosoms fill.

Fount of Love, O, Virgin blessed,
 Here as by my sins oppressed,
 At this manger bed I kneel,
 Let my soul in meek subjection,
 All the strength of thy affection,
 And Christ's pardoning mercy feel.

By that manger vigils keeping,
 Where my infant Lord lies sleeping,—
 Sent from Heaven to rescue me,—
 Let my spirit feel contrition,
 Let me bow in meek submission,
 Sharing His humility.

Mother, let me share thy gladness,
 Free my soul from doubt and sadness,
 Fill my heart with Jesus' love :
 Partner of thy exaltation,
 Let me find in Christ salvation,
 Who for me came from above.

Virgin Mother, grant thy blessing,
 While to thee I kneel confessing,
 May I, at my latest breath,
 Trusting in thy sweet Son's merit,
 Everlasting life inherit,
 Through His birth, who conquered death.

Blest with love all love excelling,
 Glad beyond all thought or telling,—
 Mine a bliss without alloy,—
 Let me, bowed in adoration,
 Filled with heavenly inspiration,
 Be partaker in thy joy.

By Christ's holy birth defended,
 By His promises attended,
 When in death my body lies,
 Grant that to my soul be given
 Entrance to His glorious Heaven,
 And the bliss of Paradise.

From the Latin of Jacoponus de Benedictis; written in the 13th Century.—Translated by

MARIAN SHAW, Minneapolis, Minn.

This hymn found place in the book entitled "The Seven Great Hymns," and with the "Mater Dolorosa" is reckoned by Dr. Schoff and others among the greatest hymns of all ages.

Friendship.*

Should one speak evil of thy dear-loved friend
 What'er his name or state, pay thou no heed :
 Thy friend's truth 'gainst the world shalt thou defend,
 Against detraction's breath, his cause shalt plead.

That man alone who steadfast loves his friend
 Is worthy that kind Heaven to him impart
 Such royal gift. The world's wealth cannot lend
 So rare a treasure as a friend's true heart.

This precious jewel hath a sacred might,
 And works its miracles by faith alone ;
 But every breath of doubt dims its pure light—
 Once broken, all its magic power is gone.

If such a jewel has been granted thee,
 Its lustre from doubts baleful breath defend :
 O, keep it sacred ! Let the wide world be
 A ring whose costliest setting is thy friend !

A beggar wandering homeless o'er the earth,
 Is rich, if one true friend he calls his own.
 That king is poor, his throne of little worth,
 Who 'mid its grandeur, stands unloved, alone.

MARIAN SHAW.

*The above poem which is adapted from the German of Frederick von Bundenstedt, was so dear to the art-loving King Louis II of Bavaria, that he had it framed in gold and hung in his bed-chamber.

The Richest Prince.

At the city of Worms in a stately hall,
 A festal table was laid :
 The lights a soft radiance spread o'er all,
 And softly the music played,

While Saxony's monarch, Bavaria's lord
 And the Palsgrave from the Rhine,
 And Wurtemberg's Count Eberhard
 Grew parlous o'er their wine.

As the beakers passed from hand to hand,
 And the tide of speech ran high,
 Each prince extolled his own dear land,
 As the noblest 'neath the sky.

Spake the Saxon ruler, elate with pride :—
 "My kingdom has wealth untold,
 Rich gems in the mountain gorges hide,
 In its valleys are stores of gold."

"Cities of splendor," boasts Bavaria's lord,
 "Churches, cloisters and castles grand,
 Rich paintings and sculptures, a priceless horde,
 Are the pride of my beauteous land."

"Rare treasures lie in my soil enfolden,"
 Cried the Palsgrave from the Rhine,
 "In its sunny vales, the corn grows golden,
 On its hillsides, the fruitful vine."

Count Eberhard to these boasts replied:
 "My land has ne'er gems nor gold,
 Nor famous cities nor halls of pride
 Decked with sculptures and carvings old.

"No vineyards purple its rugged hills,
 Its vales yield small wealth of corn :
 But a sweet content my being fills,
 As safely at eve or morn,

"I wind my horn on the rocky steep
 In the heart of the greenwood free,
 Or amid my people lie down to sleep,
 Secure in their love for me."

As the princes heard these simple words,
 They felt their treasures small,
 And cried in chorus, "Count Eberhard, Thou'rt richest of us all!"

After the German.

MARIAN SHAW.

The Lorelei.

I know not what is the reason
That I am so sad at heart ;
A legend of olden season
Will not from my thoughts depart.

In the cool twilight sparkling,
The Rhine's clear waters flow ;
On the mountain-summit darkling,
Rests the evening sunset-glow.

There sits on yon cliff a maiden,
A maiden wondrous fair ;
Her garments with gold are laden,
And she combs her golden hair.

Her hair and her comb are golden ;
As she sings her weird, sweet song,
Dream-fancies and memories olden
Float on its tones along.

Enchanted the boatman listens,
And spell-bound breathes a sigh ;
Before him the white reef glistens,
But he only looks on high.

With cold waves round them clinging,
Both boat and fisher are gone ;
And this with her magic singing
The Lorelei has done.

After Heine.

MARIAN E. SHAW.

Stabat Mater Dolorosa.

A hymn of the Crucifixion.

Near the cross with bitter anguish,
Where she saw her dear One languish,
Stood the Mother of our Lord.—
Through her heart with sorrow broken,
Wild with agony unspoken,
Pierced a sharp and cruel sword.

Oh, how sad, how sore oppressed
Was that Virgin Mother blessed,—
Mother of God's only Son,
As with sobs and bitter wailing
Anguish deep but unavailing,
She beheld her martyred One !

Who his sympathies would smother
If he saw that sorrowing Mother,
In her agony of woe,
Near her Son sad vigils keeping,
Who when he beheld her weeping
Would forbid his tears to flow ?

For her people's sins tormented,
Jesus, she beholds presented
As a bleeding sacrifice;
Pouring out his soul with moaning,
Paying with deep sighs and groaning,
Of man's guilt the awful price.

Fount of love, O Virgin holy,
Let me know as here most lowly,
At Christ's cross I humbly kneel,
All the weight of thy affliction,
And my Saviour's benediction,
Let my pardoned spirit feel !

On that cross where torn and bleeding
 Hung my Saviour interceding
 That from sin I might be free,
 Crucify my heart and spirit,
 Let me all Christ's pangs inherit
 Let me share his agony.

Mother, let me share thy sorrow
 And from grief's deep fountain borrow
 Stripes and anguish, woe and pain,
 Partner of thy lamentation,
 May I find in Christ salvation,
 Who for me was scourged and slain.

Virgin Mother, grant thy blessing
 While to thee I kneel confessing,
 Half thy woes impart to me !
 With thy sorrow let me languish,
 With thy deep and bitter anguish
 Let me a partaker be!

Let me e'en by blows be stricken,
 If Christ's cross my spirit quicken,
 All the bitter will grow sweet,
 Till I stand by thee defended
 Virgin, when my life is ended,
 Saved before God's judgment seat.

By Christ's cross forever guarded,
 By his saving death rewarded,
 When my body lifeless lies,
 Grant that to my soul be given
 Entrance to his glorious Heaven,
 And the bliss of Paradise!
